

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

And whereas it is expedient that regulations should be made for the transmission by the post of the letters and packets hereinafter mentioned.

And we direct that on every letter not exceeding half an ounce in weight, transmitted by the post between Newfoundland and any other of

Her Majesty's colonies, or any foreign country, through the United Kingdom (whether through any colony or foreign country or not), there shall be charged and taken, in lieu of any rates of British postage now payable by law on such letters, the rates of British postage following; that is to say :

And we direct that on every letter transmitted as is mentioned in this Warrant, exceeding half an ounce in weight, there shall be charged, taken, and paid, progressive and additional rates of postage as follows ; that is to say :

And on every such letter exceeding three ounces and not exceeding four ounces in weight, eight rates of postage.

And for every ounce in weight above the weight of four ounces, there shall be charged and taken two additional rates of postage; and every fraction of an ounce above the weight of four ounces shall be charged as one additional ounce; and each progressive and additional rate, chargeable under this clause, shall be estimated and charged at the sum which any such letter would be charged with under this Warrant if not exceeding half an ounce in weight.

And we direct that in all cases in which any letter, in respect of which any rate of postage is chargeable by this Warrant, shall pass through a foreign country any foreign postage payable thereon, shall be charged and paid thereon in addition to the British postage.

And we further direct, that printed votes and proceedings of the Imperial Parliament may be sent by the post from the United Kingdom to the colony of Newfoundland, direct or through any other colony, and that printed votes and proceedings of the Colonial Legislatures may be sent by the post from Newfoundland to the United Kingdom direct, or through any other colony, and that on all such printed votes and proceedings there shall be charged and taken, in lieu of any rates of British postage now payable by law thereon, the rates of British postage following; that is to say:

FROM THE

LONDON GAZETTE of JULY 7,

1854.

AT the Court at Buckingham-Palace, the 3rd day of July, 1854.

PRESENT,

The QUEEN's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas by an Act, passed in the session of Parliament holden in the sixth and seventh years of Her Majesty's reign, entitled "An Act to remove doubts as to the exercise of "power and jurisdiction by Her Majesty within "divers countries and places out of Her Majesty's "dominions, and to render the same more effectual," it was enacted, that it is and shall be lawful for Her Majesty to hold, exercise, and enjoy any power or jurisdiction which Her Majesty now hath, or may at any time hereafter have within any country or place, out of Her Majesty's dominions, in the same and as ample a manner as if Her Majesty had acquired such power or jurisdiction by the cession or conquest of territory. And whereas Her Majesty hath power and jurisdiction in the dominions of the Sublime Ottoman Porte, and the same or certain parts thereof, hath heretofore been exercised by Her Majesty's Ambassadors, Consuls, and other officers resident within the said dominions. And whereas the right of levying hospital duties on British and Ionian merchant vessels entering the ports of the Levant, was within the powers conferred upon the late Levant Company by its Charter. And whereas under and by virtue of certain rules and regulations duly made and issued by the authority of the late Levant Company, and before the surrender of the Charter of the said company, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five, a certain tonnage rate, or duty, was imposed and levied upon all British and Ionian merchant vessels entering the port of Smyrna, by the British Consul at that port, for the maintenance and support of the sick Seamen's Hospital there. And whereas the said tonnage rate, or duty, has ever since continued to be so levied and applied as aforesaid. And whereas under and by virtue of a certain statute made and passed in the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, entitled "An Act to repeal certain Acts relating to the Governor and Company of Merchants of England trading to the Levant seas, and the duties payable to them, and to authorize the transfer and disposal of the possessions and property of the said Governor and Company for the Public Service," it is enacted, that from and immediately after the enrolment of a certain deed or instrument therein mentioned (which deed or instrument has been since enrolled), all such rights and duties of jurisdiction and authority over His Majesty's subjects resorting to the ports of the Levant, for the purpose of trade or otherwise, as were lawfully exercised and performed, or which were by certain letters patent and Acts of Parliament (therein more particularly referred to), or any of them, authorized to be exercised and performed, by any Consuls or other officers, appointed by the said company, or which such Consuls or other officers lawfully exercised and performed, under and by virtue of any power or authority whatever, shall, from and after the enrolment of such deed or instrument as aforesaid, be and become vested in, and shall be exercised and performed by, such Consuls and other officers respectively as His Majesty may be pleased to appoint, for the protection of the trade of His Majesty's subjects in the ports and places respectively mentioned in the said letters patent and Acts, or any or either of them.

And whereas the right of levying hospital dues on ships trading to the Levant was one of the rights theretofore exercised by the said company and its Consuls, and the same may now be lawfully exercised and performed by Her Majesty's Consuls in and throughout the dominions of the Sublime Ottoman Porte. And whereas it is expedient to provide for the establishment, support, and maintenance of British hospitals for sick seamen coming in British or Ionian merchant vessels within the dominions of the Sublime Ottoman Porte.

Now, therefore, under and by virtue, and in pursuance of the premises, and of the said recited Acts of Parliament, and of all or any power, jurisdiction, or authority whatsoever, thereby or otherwise vested in or belonging to Her Majesty in this behalf, Her Majesty is pleased by and with the advice of Her Privy Council to order, and it is hereby ordered, that it shall be lawful for Her Majesty's Consuls residing within the said dominions, and they are hereby authorized, to levy upon all British or Ionian merchant vessels, which may enter any of the ports within their respective jurisdictions, a tonnage duty or dues, not exceeding one penny per ton on each vessel; and they are hereby authorized, directed, and required to apply all the said duty or dues, and all monies raised or received by them on account thereof, for and towards the establishment, maintenance, and support of British hospitals, for sick seamen coming in British or Ionian vessels within the said dominions. And Her Majesty is pleased by and with the like advice to order, and it is hereby ordered, that it shall be lawful for Her Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, from time to time, by any writing under his hand, to make and issue, and he is hereby authorized to make and issue, any such rules and regulations as to him may seem fit with regard to the manner in which the monies, which may be so levied or received as aforesaid by the said consuls, shall be applied or expended for the establishment, maintenance, or support of such hospitals as aforesaid; and Her

Majesty is further pleased to order, and it is hereby further ordered, that it shall be lawful for any such Secretary of State as aforesaid, from time to time, by any rule, regulation, or order in writing under his hand, to provide for the exempting any British or Ionian merchant vessel which may within any period therein set forth have once paid the said tonnage duty or dues from all or any other or additional or subsequent payment or liability in respect thereof; and Her Majesty, by and with the like advice, is further pleased to order, and it is hereby further ordered, that it shall be lawful for any such Secretary of State as aforesaid, and he is hereby authorized from time to time by any such rule, regulation, or order in writing under his hand, to alter and vary the rate or amount of the tonnage duty, or dues so to be levied or paid as aforesaid, or the manner of levying or paying or receiving the same; provided always that no such alteration or variation shall extend or operate so as to increase or exceed the aforesaid rate or amount of tonnage duty or dues, that is to say, one penny per ton upon each vessel; and it is hereby further ordered, that it shall be lawful for Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, by any writing under his hand, from time to time to limit the extent to which any Consul-General, Consul, or Vice-Consul shall exercise jurisdiction over British subjects within the dominions of the Sublime Ottoman Porte, in the matter of or in any thing relating to the said tonnage duty or dues, anything in the present Order contained notwithstanding; and Her Majesty is, by and with the like advice and consent, pleased further to order, and it is hereby further ordered, that for the purposes of this Order the words British merchant vessel or vessels, and British ship or ships shall be taken and deemed to include all or any merchant ship or vessel being the property of any subject of Her Majesty.

And the Right Honourable the Earl of Clarendon, one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, is to give the necessary directions herein accordingly.

Wm. L. Bathurst.

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE of JULY 11, 1854.

Admiralty, July 11, 1854.

A LETTER, of which the following is a copy, has been received from Commander Rice, of Her Majesty's steam-sloop Prometheus.

No. 6. Her Majesty's steam-sloop Prometheus,
 SIR, Gibraltar, June 28, 1854.

I have the honour to report to you, for the information of my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that, in pursuance of their Lordships' orders, I left Lisbon, on the evening of the 22nd instant, and proceeded towards Gibraltar.

On the afternoon of the following day, when about six miles S.W. of Cape St. Vincent, I fell in with Her Majesty's steamer Medina. On learning from her commander that she had despatches for Admiral Dundas, and that her coal would not be sufficient to take her either to Gibraltar or Cadiz, I kept company with her until the next morning, when, as it blew hard from the eastward, with a heavy sea, I was unable to take her in tow until the afternoon, when it moderated.

I left her at Cadiz, at 6 A.M., the 25th instant, and proceeded to Gibraltar, where I arrived at 6 o'clock the same evening.

Having immediately communicated with Captain the Hon. George Grey (delivering to him their Lordships' letter), I was informed by him that, on the night of Tuesday last, the 20th instant, an English brig, called the "Cuthbert Young," of South Shields, had been captured and plundered by piratical boats, about 10 miles to the N.W. of Cape Tres Forcas, but that the master and crew,* 12 in number, had escaped, and arrived at Gibraltar. Captain Grey sent the master, Mr. Marshall, on board, as also a pilot, for the Riff Coast, and at 8 o'clock the same evening I proceeded to sea.

On the following morning I anchored for a short time near the Spanish Fort of Albucema, which is on the coast of the district of Beni Oriaga (mentioned in the extract of a despatch enclosed in their Lordships' letter), and communicated with the Governor. I learnt from him that the boy referred to by their Lordships' letter had been given up and sent to Tangier, unhurt, in charge of two soldiers of the Emperor of Morocco, four days previously, having been confined five weeks in the neighbourhood of Albucema.

The Spanish vessel captured by the Moors was laden with water, oil, and Spanish Government stores for the fort of Albucema. She was taken at night, and subsequently destroyed on the shore of Beni Oriaga, in sight of the Spanish garrison, just out of gun shot.

The Moors sent to offer to sell her, the cargo, and the boy, to the Governor of Albucema for 6,000 reals. The Governor declined, and detained the messenger as a hostage for the security of the boy, and he is still a prisoner, but to be released.

The boy was given up immediately the two persons sent by the Governor of Tetuan arrived.

* I have since learnt that only six arrived here; the other six went away from the brig in a boat but have not been heard of, they left half an hour before the master and other five escaped.

I believe their Lordships are informed that seven of the captors of the felucca were made prisoners by the Governor of Tetuan when attempting to to sell the oil, &c., which they had carried there for sale.

The Governor of Albucema also informed me that he believed the Spanish Government were about to station a force of armed vessels at Penon Velez, Albucema, and Melilla for the suppression of piracy.

On leaving Albucema, I proceeded close along the coast, in search of the brig "Cuthbert Young," and at 4 P.M. found her anchored about 200 yards from the shore, in a rocky inlet, 10 or 12 miles S.W. of Cape Tres Forcas, near the spot marked "Zera" on the chart. I steamed in towards her, and as we neared her, the Moors opened fire on us with volleys of musketry from the rocks, among which the brig was anchored. As the brig was in 3 fathoms water I could get close to her, and Lieutenant Visconti and a party of men were sent to make a hawser fast from our bows to hers, and to slip the cable. The cable could not be unshackled, the anchor was therefore hove up, and at 6 o'clock we backed out of the cove with the brig in tow.

Soon after the Moors had begun firing, and were assembled in considerable numbers round us, we opened fire on those ahead, and on the port bow from the pivot gun forward, and on those on the starboard side and starboard quarter, from the quarter deck guns, with grape, canister, and short range shells. The Minie muskets were also used with success.

The firing under the direction of Lieutenant Edye, senior lieutenant, was very accurate, and the Moors must, in all probability, have suffered severely.

Lieutenant Visconti and his party did their duty of running out and securing the hawser, and weighing the anchor, &c., &c., with great steadiness.

During the hour and a half we were employed in getting the brig away, the Moors kept up a constant fire, which, from the nature of the ground, they were, from some quarters further in shore, able to do so with comparative safety.

I am happy to say that we had but one casualty, John Hays, stoker, wounded in the head by a musket ball, but not dangerously.

The brig is complete, with the exception of the destruction of some of the internal fittings and spare sails.

At 7 30, I proceeded with the brig in tow for this place, where I have the honour to report my arrival at 1 A. M. this day.

Shortly after leaving the shore, at Zera, the starboard engine broke down, and we have been obliged to proceed, until within 20 miles of this place, working one engine only. I find that the defects of both engines, as detailed in the report of Mr. Thomas Murray, Chief Engineer, herewith enclosed, will detain us at this place three or four days. As soon as ready I shall return to Lisbon, agreeable to their Lordships' orders.

I have, &c.,

EDW. R. RICE, Commander and Senior Officer.

be paid in respect of each of the said lights, for every British vessel (the same not belonging to Her Majesty, Her heirs and successors, or being navigated wholly in ballast), and for every foreign vessel privileged to enter the ports of the United Kingdom upon paying the same duties of tonnage as are payable by British vessels, which may pass or derive benefit from such light, the toll of two-sixteenths of a penny per ton of the burthen of every such vessel for every time of passing or deriving benefit therefrom, if on a coasting voyage, and one penny per ton for each time of passing or deriving benefit therefrom, if on an oversea voyage ; and for every foreign vessel not navigated wholly in ballast, and not privileged in manner hereinbefore mentioned, double the amount of the respective tolls hereinbefore specified, according to the voyage on which she may be employed :

And that the said tolls, in respect of each of the said lighthouses shall be levied by the Commissioners of Northern Lighthouses subject to the abatement or discount of twenty-five per cent. on vessels engaged in oversea voyages, and of ten per cent. on vessels engaged in coasting voyages, provided for by an Order in Council, dated the twenty-ninth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, and subject also to the regulations contained in a table of tolls prepared by the said Commissioners, and sanctioned by an Order in Council, dated the thirtieth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four.

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE of JULY 28, 1854.

Admiralty, July 27, 1854.

DESPATCHES, of which the following are copies, have been received from Vice-Admiral Dundas, C.B., Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's Ships and Vessels in the Mediterranean and Black Sea:

Destruction of Batteries, &c., at the Sulina. Death of Captain Hyde Parker, of the Firebrand.

No. 330,
 SIR,

Britannia, off Baljik,
July 11, 1854.

I have the honour to enclose for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, copies of the reports of Commander Powell and other officers, who, on the 8th instant, attacked and completely destroyed the inner batteries, stockades and buildings, at the Sulina Mouth of the Danube.

2. The satisfaction I feel at the perfect success of this gallant exploit, is much diminished by the death of Captain Hyde Parker, who fell when leading his men.

The service has lost in him a most promising young officer, who was always zealous to do his duty, and never made a difficulty.

3. Acting Lieutenant Lyons, after the fall of his gallant captain, commanded the Firebrand's boats, and most admirably did his duty, suffering a loss in his own boat of five men wounded.

I have, &c.

J. W. D. DUNDAS, Vice-Admiral.
The Secretary of the Admiralty.

Enclosure No. 1, in Mediterranean Letter No. 333.

Her Majesty's ship Vesuvius, off Sulina,

SIR,

July 8, 1854.

It is with great grief that I have to report to you that Captain Hyde Parker, of Her Majesty's steam-frigate Firebrand, has been this day killed whilst in the act of leading his men to take a stockade battery on the Danube.

The loss of this gallant Officer is but ill compensated by the complete success with which his attack was attended.

The circumstances are as follows: Captain Hyde Parker directed a strong party of boats from the Firebrand and Vesuvius to accompany him up the Danube for the purpose of destroying some works which were occupied by the Russians. At 2 P.M. the boats entered the Danube, Captain Parker's gig in advance; at a bend of the river, opposite a number of houses on the right bank and a large stockade on the left, a sharp fire was opened upon him, and his boat was nearly riddled, some of his men were wounded.

The heavy boats were coming up and Captain Parker at once pulled back to them, hailing me to land the marines and be ready to storm. This order was executed by the marines and a detachment of seamen in the same gallant spirit with which it was given. Captain Parker then dashed on shore, in his gig, and at once advanced with a few men, he was in front and greatly exposed; a tremendous fire was soon opened by the enemy upon them, and a few minutes after landing a bullet passed through their leader's heart, and in a moment this gallant sailor ceased to live. Thus died an officer whose merits, sir, are well known to yourself. His conduct on this occasion leaves an example of valour that never can be erased from the memory of those who were present.

The command of the force then devolved upon myself. I directed the gun-boats, and rocket-boat at once to be brought to the front; the storming party was formed by Lieutenant Jull, R.M.A., the gun-boats commenced a most effective fire upon the houses and battery, and in a short time the enemy's fire was silenced.

I directed the storming party to advance, and the place was entered at a run by a detachment of marines and sailors, headed by Lieutenant Jull, R.M.A., and Lieutenant Hawkey, R.M.

We found that the enemy had already retreated at the rear, and so thick was the cover, that pursuit was in vain.

The work that we had taken was a gabion battery, the guns of which had been taken away and the embrasures filled up. It consisted of a front along the river raised about 15 feet high, and 400 yards in extent; in the rear was a morass, and the two flanks, which were not 30 yards in length, were defended as in front; this work enclosed about fifty Government houses, stables, store-houses, and a magazine. The works have been entirely demolished, the houses destroyed, and nothing now marks the spot but a heap of ruins. Part of the town of Sulina, from whence the enemy had opened fire, has been burnt; the principal street I have thought it proper to spare.

There was no means of computing the enemy's loss, although they were seen to fall inside the intrenchments. I am disposed to think that they were assisted in carrying off their wounded, and even defending the place, by some Greeks, as men in the dress of that country were seen intermixed with the Russian troops.

From the heavy fire that was opened upon us, and from the number that were seen afterwards collected at a distance, the enemy must have been in great force before they retreated.

It becomes my duty to report to you the extreme good conduct of all employed on this occasion. The gun-boats were most skilfully managed under circumstances of great difficulty. They were commanded by Lieutenant Sullivan, Acting-Lieutenant Lyons, and Messrs. Goolden and Kerby, mates.

Mr. Carey, second master, has, I regret to say, been badly wounded; he behaved most creditably.

It fell to Lieutenant Jull's lot to have an opportunity of particularly distinguishing himself by his coolness and gallantry whilst in command of the marines, and he speaks most highly of Lieutenant Hawkey, the non-commissioned officers and men that were with him.

The medical officers have merited our best thanks. Dr. O'Hagan, in the execution of his duty, was in the midst of the fire, and his clothes were pierced with bullets.

I must claim your indulgence for the hasty manner in which this Dispatch has been written, as I wish the Firebrand to join your flag immediately, with the body of the late well-loved and gallant Captain Hyde Parker.

I have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD A. POWELL, Commander.

Vice-Admiral J. W. D. Dundas, C.B.

 SIR off Sulina, July 8, 1854.

I beg leave to enclose the accompanying letter from Mr. Lyons (Acting-Lieutenant), who commanded the boats of this ship in the attack and destruction of the stockaded battery at the Sulina Mouth of the Danube. He speaks highly of the conduct of the officers and men under his command, especially James Shade, able seaman; but as you were personally present, it only remains for me to state, that Mr. Lyons has displayed much courage and ability, on more than this occasion, since joining the ship.

The death, ever and deeply to be lamented, of our much loved Captain, Hyde Parker, has thrown a deep gloom on all who had the fortune to serve under him; but he died leaving an example to all who survive him, of heroic gallantry and ability.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) WM. GORE JONES,
 Senior Lieutenant Commanding Her Majesty's Ship Firebrand.

To Commander R. Powell, R.N., H.M.'s Steam-sloop Vesuvius.

Sub-Enclosure No. 1, in Enclosure No. 2, in the Mediterranean Letter, No. 330.

Her Majesty's steam-frigate Firebrand,
 SIR, off Sulina, July 8, 1854.

I have the honour to forward the returns of the boats employed and the number of men killed and wounded at the attack and capture, this day, of a stockade on the left bank of the Danube.

The command of one division of the boats, after the lamented death of Captain Hyde Parker, devolved on me; the pinnace under my immediate command being in advance of the other boats, caused the principal part of the enemy's fire to be directed upon her, and I regret to say that five men in that boat were wounded (three severely).

I have, sir, to speak in the highest terms of the good conduct and steadiness of the whole of the officers and men under my command under the galling fire of the enemy, and I would beg to bring them strongly before your notice. Where all behaved so well it is almost invidious to particularize, but I beg particularly to mention James Shade, able seaman, who, I regret to say, after much distinguishing himself, was severely wounded.

Lieutenant Jull, R.M.A., speaks in equally high terms of the conduct of the marines under his command.

As you have already been made acquainted with the circumstances under which his country has to mourn the death of Captain Hyde Parker, and the total defeat of the enemy and destruction of their works, which followed, yet scarcely avenged it, it will not be necessary for me to enter into any details of the engagement.

I have, &c.

(Signed) ALGERNON LYONS,

PROCLAMATION.

The Royal Administration of Marine announces, for the information and guidance of mariners, that a lens apparatus of the 4th degree, with a fixed light, and giving out sharp flashes at short intervals (à feu fixé, varié par des éclats et par courtes éclipses), was put up on the Northern Lighthouse at Koster, instead of the blue light which was there before, and that the lighting of the same began on the evening of the 23rd of June last. According to the trial ordered to be made to obtain information respecting the extent and power of the light of this lighthouse, compared with the lens-light of the 3rd degree, with a fixed light, which is placed beside it, the flashing light was visible at a distance of 3 geographical miles, and the flashes, which only lasted 7 seconds, gave out as much power as the light of the fixed lighthouse.

 Tuns, Key A and B, and the White Tuns, No. 1

The White Tuns, situated on Tegeler's Plate, hitherto marked No 3 and 3 a, are at present marked No. 2 and 3.

The position of the remaining black and white tuns below the Floating Light (light vessel) and up to the Black C Tun, but which, instead of the cross, is at present distinguishable by carrying a black vane-stock (Flügel Stange), remains, till further notice, unaltered.

All vessels coming in and making the new mouth of the Weser, on an E.S.E. tack, will, after having found the first Red Buoy Key Tun in the above specified bearings, retain their course for a short distance till within the vicinity of the first White Outer Tun, and having reached this, they will have to direct their course S.E., and then get the Floating Light (light vessel), No. 1, straight before them. Steering in a direct line up to the Floating Light (light vessel), they pass over the sandridge of the former Mellum direct into the old channel.

The depth of water in the new mouth is 9, 10, 11, and 3 fathoms; and on the sandridge of the Mellum, which is moreover but very narrow, 27 Bremen feet at low water, or fully 4 fathoms English.

The specified depths of water are taken in English measure.

In conclusion it is further notified, that in the spring of next year, the first Weser Key Tun will be painted black, instead of red as at present, but that with respect to the remaining tuns no alteration will take place.

This information is to be publicly made known at those ports.

I have the honour to inform you, that immediately on receipt of your letter of 12th May, which I received on the same day, I communicated the contents of that letter to

Mr. Grisler, Hanoverian Consul at Memel.

Memel Roadstead.*

Copy of an official report from Captain Key, R.N., Her Majesty's ship Amphion, to Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Napier.

Amphion, off Windau,

SIR,

June 14, 1854.

Her Majesty's ship under my orders having detained several vessels belonging to Neutral Nations for attempting to violate the blockade established on this coast, and sent them to England for legal adjudication in accordance with articles 9 and 10 of the Admiralty instructions on the subject, I have the honour to report, for your information, the circumstances under which the said vessels have been captured, the manner in which the blockade has been carried out, and other points which may be of importance to the Court of Admiralty commissioned to take cognizance of this question.

Three points must be proved to condemn these vessels as lawful prizes:

1st. That an effective blockade has been established.

2nd. That the vessels detained attempted to violate this blockade.

3rd. That they were aware of its existence.

Regarding the first point I have the honour to inform you that since May 9th, when I was first intrusted with the blockade of this coast (at which time I found Her Majesty's ships Conflict and Cruizer on the station, which vessels had been blockading since April 20th) two ships have been ordered to cruize off the entrance of the Gulf of Riga, a passage limited by the shoals to a breadth of three miles, this entrance has never been left without one vessel. Two other ships have been continually passing between Windau and Memel within sight of the coast.

No doubt in a few instances vessels have succeeded in evading the cruisers under cover of the night and the fogs, which have been so prevalent that the number of vessels boarded is of itself a proof that vigilance has been exercised.

The second point is readily ascertained by a reference to the definition which has been sent in each vessel by the Captain of the ships detaining her, in which the locality, the course the vessel was steering, and the direction of the wind are stated.

With respect to the third point, the knowledge of the blockade, great care has been necessary to prevent injury to innocent vessels. The captured vessels come under two heads—those attempting to enter the blockaded ports, and those leaving them. As regards the former, the Captains of Her Majesty's ships received orders that if the slightest reasonable doubt existed as to the captain or the owner of the vessel being informed of the blockade, she was to be sent away with a notification to that effect on his papers.

Under these orders 154 vessels have been warned off since April 20th, although nearly all of them passed through the Sound, communicating at Elsinore, which scarcely allows a doubt to exist of their knowledge of the blockade. Nevertheless I deemed it my duty to show as much leniency to neutrals as was compatible with the interests of the Allied Powers. Four vessels only have been detained for attempting to enter the ports. Two of these contained coal, and were without proper papers; the others were from Copenhagen, and confessed their knowledge of the blockade.

To insure that the residents in the blockaded ports should not plead ignorance of their condition, I wrote the accompanying letter (Enclosure No. 1) to the British Vice-Consul at Memel, the contents of which were published in the Berlin Gazette, and were publicly made known at Riga, Libau, and Windau. Mr. Hertslet answer (No. 2) I enclose.

Notwithstanding this, several vessels have taken in cargoes, and left Riga; they have therefore been detained, and sent to England for adjudication.

(Signed) A. COOPER KEY,
Captain and Senior Officer on the Coast of Kourland.

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE of AUGUST 15, 1854.

Buckingham-Palace, August 12, 1854.

THIS day Her Majesty, accompanied by His Royal Highness Prince Albert, proceeded in state from Buckingham-Palace to the House of Peers, where she arrived soon after two o'clock; and was received, on alighting from Her state coach, by the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Privy Seal, Sir Augustus Clifford Bart., C.B., Deputy Great Chamberlain (in the absence of the Lord Willoughby de Eresby), and the Treasurer of the Household, Norroy officiating for Garter King of Arms, and the Yeoman Usher of the Black Rod, and proceeded to the State Robing-room in the customary manner.

Her Majesty was there robed, and the procession moved into the House in the usual order;—the sword of state was borne by the Earl of Aberdeen, K.T., the cap of maintenance by the Marquess of Winchester, and the crown by the Marquess of Lansdowne, K.G.

ingly, Her Majesty was pleased to give the Royal Assent to

An Act to apply a sum out of the Consolidated Fund, and certain other sums, to the service of the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four, and to appropriate the supplies granted in this session of Parliament.

An Act for the further alteration and amendment of the laws and duties of Customs.

An Act to render any dealing with securities issued, during the present war between Russia and England, by the Russian Government, a misdemeanour.

An Act to settle the contribution to be made by certain baronies in Roscommon and Galway and the county of the town of Galway to the Midland Great Western Railway of Ireland Company.

An Act for the further amendment of the process, practice, and mode of pleading in, and enlarging the jurisdiction of, the Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster, and of the Superior Courts of Common Law of the counties palatine of Lancaster and Durham.

After which Her Majesty was pleased to deliver the following most gracious Speech to both Houses of Parliament :

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I am enabled by the state of public business to release you from a longer attendance in Parliament.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

In closing the session it affords me great pleasure to express my sense of the zeal and energy you have shown in providing means for the vigorous prosecution of the war in which, notwithstanding my efforts to avert it, we are now engaged. This liberality in granting the supplies for the public service demands my warmest thanks; and although I lament the increased burthens of my people, I fully recognize your wisdom in sacrificing considerations of present convenience, and in providing for the immediate exigencies of the war without an addition being made to the permanent debt of the country.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

In cordial co-operation with the Emperor of the French, my efforts will be directed to the effectual repression of that ambitious and aggressive spirit on the part of Russia which has compelled us to take up arms in defence of an ally, and to secure the future tranquillity of Europe.

You will join with me in admiration of the courage and perseverance manifested by the troops of the Sultan in their defence of Silistria, and in the various military operations on the Danube.

The engrossing interest of matters connected with the progress of the war has prevented the due consideration of some of those subjects which at the opening of the session I had recommended to your attention, but I am happy to acknowledge the labour and diligence with which you have perfected various important measures well calculated to prove of great public utility.

You have not only passed an Act for opening the coasting trade of the United Kingdom, and for removing the last legislative restriction upon the use of foreign vessels, but you have also revised and consolidated the whole statute law relating to merchant shipping.

The Act for establishing the direct control of the House of Commons over the charges incurred in the collection of the revenue will give more complete effect to an important principle of the constitution, and will promote simplicity and regularity in our system of public account.

I rejoice to perceive that amendments in the administration of the law have continued to occupy your attention, and I anticipate great benefit from the improvements you have made in the forms of procedure in the superior courts of common law.

The means you have adopted for the better government of the University of Oxford, and the improvement in its constitution, I trust will tend greatly to increase the usefulness and to extend the renown of this great seminary of learning.

I have willingly given my assent to the measure you have passed for the prevention of bribery and of corrupt practices at elections, and I hope that it may prove effectual in the correction of an evil which, if unchecked, threatens to fix a deep stain upon our representative system.

It is my earnest desire that on returning to your respective counties you may preserve a spirit of union and concord. Deprived of the blessings of peace abroad, it is more than ever necessary that we should endeavour to confirm and increase the advantages of our internal situation; and it is with the greatest satisfaction that I regard the progress of active industry and the general prosperity which happily prevails throughout the country.

Deeply sensible of these advantages, it is my humble prayer that we may continue to enjoy the favour of the Almighty, and that, under His gracious protection, we may be enabled to bring the present contest to a just and honourable termination.

Then the Lord Chancellor, by Her Majesty's command, said,

My Lords and Gentlemen,

It is Her Majesty's royal will and pleasure, that this Parliament be prorogued to Thursday, the nineteenth day of October next, to be then here holden; and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Thursday the nineteenth day of October next.

5. The loss of the French at the western tower was also trifling.

6. Both batteries were admirably constructed and admirably fought, which accounts for the small loss. General Jones speaks in high terms of the conduct of the seamen and marine artillery, and the precision of their fire.

7. During the time the operations were going on, General Baraguay d'Hilliers was employed in establishing his breaching batteries against the great fortress, and the French and English steamers, as per margin,* supported by Trident (bearing the flag of Rear Admiral Penau), Duperré, Edinburgh, and Ajax, kept up a well-directed fire from their shell guns, and very much damaged the fortress, whilst Captain The Honourable F. T. Pelham, of the Blenheim, kept up a beautiful fire from a 10-inch gun, landed in the battery we had driven the enemy out of a few days before. His position was one of great danger, but the battery was put in such good order by Captain Pelham, that the men were well covered, and he had no loss.

8. The General's breaching batteries will be ready by to-morrow, and they shall be well supported by the ships-of-the-line of both nations, and the steamers. The narrowness of the ground on which the General has established his breaching battery, very much circumscribes the space; the greatest caution will be necessary to prevent firing on his troops, and the little space in the anchorage before Bomarsund, and the intricacy of the navigation, will prevent ships approaching the main fortress so near as could be wished; but when the batteries are established acting in the rear of the SURRENDER OF BOMARSUND.

Bulldog, off Bomarsund,

August 16, 1854.

Continuation of my despatch of this date, will inform their Lordships that, after way the mail, the fortress opened a heavy Captain Pelham's battery, which had hem much, and which he maintained all and to day, and it is wonderful how he en escaped. He had with him Lieuose and Mr. Wildman, Mate, of whom he speaks highly. Seeing his position, I immediately ordered the ships and steamers named in the margin,* who were within range with their 10-inch guns, as well as the French mortars on shore, which had been playing on them some time, to give them a shot and shell every five minutes ; and their fire was so well directed that the enemy held out a flag of truce.

2. I sent Captain Hall (of the Bulldog) on shore, who was shortly joined by Admiral Parseval's Aide-de-Camp, and two of General Baraguay d'Hilliers' Staff, and the troops in the fortress agreed to lay down their arms and march out.

3. After I had landed I was joined by the French Admiral and the Commander-in-Chief of the Army ; the prisoners (about 2,000 I believe) were marched out and embarked in steamers, and proceeded to Led Sund, to Commodore The Honourable Frederick Grey, who will conduct them to the Downs to await for further orders.

4. I beg to congratulate their Lordships on the fall of this important fortress, which will be followed by the submission of the Garden of Islands, with so small a loss ; and I am happy to say the greatest cordiality has subsisted between the French General and Admiral and myself, as well as between the soldiers and sailors of the two nations.

5. As soon as I can collect a list of the stores captured, it shall be forwarded to their Lordships, and a Commissary has been named for that purpose.

6. This despatch will be delivered by my Flag Lieutenant (Lieutenant John de Courcy Agnew),

TO THE

Admiralty, August 23, 1854.

following additional Despatch has been from Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Napier,

K.C.B., detailing operations connected with the fall of the Fortress of Bomarsund:

No. 340.

Bulldog, off Bomarsund,

SIR,

August 11, 1854.

By the last mail I informed their Lordships of the arrival and debarkation of the troops; I now beg to acquaint you that on Wednesday morning the 9th instant, the troops were in position, both to the north and south, and the western battery of the enemy completely invested.

2. It was now time to land the guns, and as we had no horses, it was necessary to employ the ships' companies instead. Enclosed is a copy of the order I gave to Rear-Admiral Chads, and his report of proceedings.

3. There were many instances last war of guns being placed in extraordinary positions, but I do not believe that in any one case such difficulties were overcome as in the present instance.

4. The moving of the guns was under the command of Captain Hewlett, of the Edinburgh, but Admiral Chads, with his usual activity was there to cheer them on, and indeed all the captains occasionally gave the benefit of their presence to the men employed on this hard and fatiguing service.

bedience to your directions to give every in the four ships of my squadron named in gin*, to Brigadier-General Jones, to form ing battery, I consulted with that officer, roposed to compose his battery of six two pounders of 42 cwt., which guns you warded in the Belleisle, when the following ons were undertaken.

Edinburgh... Donald Mc L. Mackenzie, Senior Lieut.
gue Thomas Davies (B), Senior Lieut.
nheim ... Geo. H. Clarke, Senior Lieut.
x Walter J. Pollard, Senior Lieut.

Each ship having previously prepared two sledges, after a pattern made by Captain Ramsay, for dragging the guns, four were landed on the morning of the 10th, to convey three guns and the carriages and the gear, with 150 men to each sledge, under their respective senior lieutenants, the whole being under the command of Captain Hewlett, of my flag-ship, encouraged occasionally by their own captains.

The situation selected for the battery from the landing-place was four and a half miles distant, over execrable ground, the greatest portion of steep rocky hills and ploughed fields.

At five o'clock the boats left the ships, erected shears, landed the guns, and had them in the General's camp by one o'clock; the exertions and good will of the officers and seamen created much astonishment in the encampment of the French troops, who cheered them in passing, and on some of the most difficult ascents, went in voluntarily and most cheerfully to the drag-ropes, and gave their assistance.

On arriving in camp the men were much exhausted and laid down to rest, and prepare their dinners, when an order arrived that they were to embark immediately, as the Penelope was on shore under the fire of the enemy, and their ships might be required; the order was received with cheers, and, forgetting dinners and fatigue, rushed down to their boats in three quarters of an hour by a short route, but close under the enemy's fire.

On the next morning the same number of guns were landed, but on this occasion, with 200 men from each ship—as the parties the previous evening were much fatigued—these guns were in the camp by 10.30.

The bands of the ships attended the parties, and the whole march was one of triumph over difficulties that previously had been considered almost insurmountable; the spirits of the men were occasionally excited by a dropping shot from the enemy.

It is unnecessary for me to expatiate on the merits of Captain Hewlett, the officers, and seamen, in performing this arduous service, but to express my admiration of their great zeal and perseverance, as from personal observation on the spot you will have formed your own judgment.

Bulldog, off Bomarsund,

(Memorandum.)

The Commander-in-Chief begs to convey to Rear-Admiral Chads his admiration of the great exertion made by Captain Hewlett, the officers and men employed in landing and transporting six thirty-two pounders to General Jones's camp, a distance of four miles and a half. The Commander-in-Chief, in the course of his service, has seen guns moved in difficult places, but never on such roads and to such a distance as in the present instance. The cheerfulness and exertions of the men were wonderful, nor must it be forgotten, when the Penelope got on shore under the enemy's battery, and it was probable they might be wanted on board their ships, regardless of their fatigue, they abandoned their dinner and hurried down to their boats to embark and render assistance to the Penelope in distress.

Admiralty, August 28, 1854.

DESPATCHES, of which the following are copies or extracts, have been received from Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Napier, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's Ships and Vessels in the Baltic:

No. 380.

Bulldog, off Bomarsund,

SIR,

August 19, 1854.

I beg to inclose a letter from Rear-Admiral Plumridge, who was stationed, with the Hecla and the French steamer Cocyte (commanded by Lieutenant de Vaisseau A. Georgette du Buisson), on the north side of Bomarsund.

2. I had intended to have brought his squadron through the Presto Channel to have shelled the north side of Bomarsund, but when the breaching es were placed he could not take that without endangering the men in the French es; he therefore very wisely took up a n so that he had the Presto Tower, and sund in a line, and did good service against Presto Tower, which I afterwards examined. s rather too close, being within range of the s fire, and received some damage, but no s hurt.

The ships I stationed to the southward were range of the enemy's guns, and received no e; but the shot and shells from the 10-inch together with the fire from the four French a, which never missed, and the excellent m Captain Pelham's battery, together with reparations the enemy saw in progress, I e expedited the surrender.

Had the enemy held out till the following g, when the breaching battery, judiciously by the French Engineer (General Niel) 400 yards of the rear of the fort, and the ne French and English Admirals intended e in their flank, the fortress would have educed to ashes.

have the honour of enclosing lists of the British Force landed, and of casualties, r with a list of prisoners and guns cap- being no less than 112 mounted, 3 mortars, pieces, and 79 not mounted.

The Commissioners are now taking an t of the stores, and they are preparing plans y of the batteries in existence but of those ress, which I shall send home as soon as his has been a most arduous and laborious and I have great reason to be satisfied e great exertions of all the officers, seamen, rines, and their orderly conduct. General Jones speaks in the highest terms of the conduct of Colonel Graham and his marines. The firing of the seamen and marines and marine artillery, under Captain Ramsay, was most precise; he himself was slightly wounded.

9. The shells thrown by the ships were most destructive, and had the fortress resisted till the following day when all was ready on shore, they would have been irresistible.

RESPECTING OPERATIONS AT BOMARSUND.

Her Majesty's ship Blenheim, Bomarsund,

SIR,

August 17, 1854.

It is with great pleasure that I have to report to you, for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, the exceeding good conduct and gallantry displayed by the officers and men under my command on shore at Blenheim Battery, during the attack on Bomarsund, on the 15th and 16th instant, when under a very heavy fire of shell and shot during the greater part of this period.

All deserve the highest praise, and I name in the margin* the two officers and captain of gun.

In Camp, Bomarsund, Aland Islands,

SIR,

August 18, 1854.

I have the honour to acquaint you that in compliance with your directions, I landed at Bomarsund on the 8th instant, in command of a battalion of Royal Marines, and placed myself under the orders of Brigadier-General Jones, R. E., the general officer commanding the brigade.

The brigadier-general having by a brigade order of yesterday's date, thanked the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Royal Marines under my command for their good conduct during the period they have been employed on shore, as also for the cheerful and willing manner in which they have performed the very laborious duties they were called upon to perform, and which has contributed so greatly to the successful results which have been obtained, I have only to bear my testimony to their zeal and steadiness in the performance of every duty allotted to them.

The artillery companies of the corps, under the direction of Captain Ramsey, R.N., with Lieutenants Mawbey, Poore, and Hewett, R.M.A. performed their part well. The exactness and precision of their fire from the battery reflected great credit on the officers in command of the several guns.

The divisional companies were repeatedly exposed to a heavy fire of round and grape as well as from the Minnié rifle, the casualties have been few, for which we have to be thankful to a divine providence.

I beg to bring to your favourable notice the zeal and energetic conduct of the two officers appointed by brigade orders of the 9th instant, to perform the duties of field officers, viz. ; Major Nolloth and Captain Heriot, R.M., of my brigade, Major Captain W. C. P. Elliott, whose exertions

Board of Trade, Whitehall, Marine Department, August 29, 1854.

The Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations have received from Her Majesty's Acting Consul at Rotterdam, the following translations of Notices to Mariners, issued by the Netherland Minister of Marine, relative to certain changes that have taken place in the positions of buoys on the Dutch Coast.

(Copy.)

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

The Minister of Marine gives notice, that two separately visible Beacons have been placed on the outer side of the Banjaard ; viz. :—

1st. An anchor buoy-shaped Beacon of the largest size, at about four cable lengths outside, or to the north-west of the steep point of the Banjaard, painted white, with a red top, and bearing one ell above the same a half-round black-painted basket, in the following directions and soundings :—

The Beacon Light on the north side of Schonwen, in the centre of the Down of the Wester Doodkist ; veere free of the Downs at the Schans ; in the line of the Beacon Light of the Revolving Light of Schonwen E.S.E. rather E. ; the Steeple of West Kapelle, S.S.W. $\frac{1}{4}$ W., in ten fathoms or seventeen ells depth at low water.

2nd. A similar Beacon, about half a German mile W.S.W. of the other, likewise painted white, with a red top, and bearing one ell above the same, a perfectly round red-painted ball, in soundings thus :—

The Light Beacon of the Revolving Light of Schonwen E. by S. rather South; the Steeple of West Kapelle S.S.W. $\frac{1}{4}$ W., in eight fathoms or 13·5 ells depth at low water.

These buoys are constantly floating; the tops are three, and the baskets fully four ells above the surface of the water, and with ordinary atmosphere are visible fully at a distance of one German mile, when they have the appearance of a small sailing-vessel with a flag at the top mast.

By these objects, in connection with the Wreck Buoy outside of the Sea Gat of Bronwershaven, which has been exchanged for one of a larger size, together with the black anchor buoy-shaped Beacon with basket, lying at the western point of the Ooster, the dangerous points of the Banjaard and of the Ooster are pointed out by four very distinct large beacons, in regard to which it has to be observed, that at whichever of the same, observations be taken, by keeping an E.N.E. course, the dangers of the above banks will be avoided.

The compass marks are unadjusted.

War Department, September 1, 1854.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle has received two Despatches, of which the following are copies, addressed to his Grace by Brigadier General Harry David Jones, of the Royal Engineers:

No. 5. Camp before Bomarsund,
MY LORD DUKE, August 16, 1854.

In my despatch No. 4, under date the 14th instant, I stated that there was every prospect of being able to open my batteries, erected against Fort Nottich, yesterday morning: I have now the honour to report that at 8 A.M. yesterday morning I ordered the two batteries, which were manned by seamen from the Fleet and detachments of Royal Marine Artillery, under the command of Captain Ramsay, R.N., to open their fire; this was done in a very effective manner, by a spirited and extremely well-directed fire. By 3 P.M. the interior of the tower was laid open, and all the guns silenced. At 6 P.M., a white flag having been hoisted, I directed my Brigade-Major, St. George Ord, who had offered his services to take his tour of duty on the batteries, and who was then so employed, immediately to proceed, and take possession of the fort; this duty he performed in a very satisfactory manner; but finding that it would not be possible for him to keep open his communication with my advanced posts after day light, in consequence of the proximity of the principal work, he brought off three officers and 115 soldiers, who gave themselves up to him as prisoners: I have in consequence sent them to the Admiral, Sir C. Napier, for shipment.

In the fort were sixteen 18-pounder iron guns, and two 32-pounder iron guns.

 Lieutenant of Engineers, 1 Captain of Infantry, 1 Sub-Lieutenant, Infantry, and 129 men, Artillery and Line.

were 6 killed and 7 wounded.

withstanding the heavy and well-directed fire of our batteries, both from Fort Nottichemesto, the casualties were very few, but for that number I have to regret the loss of a promising young officer of Engineers, Lieutenant the Honourable C. Wrottesley, who received a mortal wound from a cannon ball, and struck a trunnion of one of the guns.

Thanks are specially due to Captain Ramsay, and the officers of the Royal Navy, and also of the detachment of the Royal Artillery, for the spirited and energetic manner in which they performed the laborious task of dragging the 32-pounders up the mountain to the site of the batteries. From my second command, Colonel Graham, of the Royal Artillery, and Aide-de-Camp to Her Majesty, and the officers and men employed under my command, I continue to receive the most willing co-operation. Although the operations of the last few light hours may appear to be insulated and independent of those carrying on by the French, I have to state that I have constantly been in close communication with General d'Hilliers, and that whatever I have to be done, or executed, has been part of the general plan of attack, and which now must be considered as drawing to a close.

I have, &c.,

No. 6.

MY LORD DUKE,

Camp before Bomarsund,August 19, 1854.

I have the honour to report, that on the morning of the 16th the fire from the fleet was resumed, and after about two hours' firing, the white flag was hoisted on the large fort of Bomarsund, and the garrison* surrendered unconditionally, and were embarked in two hours afterwards.

The interior of the fort showed that the fire from the ships had been excellent; nevertheless the injury to the works was trifling, and ought not to have induced the Governor, with such a strong garrison, no breach, and a well casemated work to have surrendered. The cause may be considered that, finding two of his principal advanced works taken, a breaching battery ready to open, and no prospect of relief, it would be a sacrifice of life to hold out any longer: thus has been lost to Russia a most important military post, and, judging from the nature of the works existing, those partly erected, and the foundations of others which have been laid, it was evidently the intention of the Russian Government to have created a first-rate fortress; the position of Bomarsund at the entrance of the Gulfs of Finland and Bothnia, with a beautiful and extensive anchorage well sheltered, points it out as a position of the most favourable nature, and no expence apparently has been spared in the construction of the works already built, and the walls of those partly erected are of the same substantial nature.

The position of Bomarsund is naturally very strong, and favourable for defence; bold and rocky, with a fine command of the ground in its immediate front, and when occupied with suitable advanced works would make its capture a very eration, and if full garrisoned would a very large force for its reduction: the has sent home his report accompanied by report from the French General Niel and upon the practicability of holding Bomarsund in its present state; that report will have reached London before this despatch, it is therefore needless for me to recapitulate the substance of the report, as your Grace will have been furnished with it; in fact, I have no copy, as it was sent for in great haste, and no time was given me to do so before the departure of Lieutenant Nugent, Royal Engineers, the bearer of Admiral's despatches.

The first operation of the combined forces has been brought to a successful termination, I am permitted to state that the utmost cord and good feeling have pervaded every branch of service employed, English as well as French; making these observations I should not do justice to the officers of the Royal Navy, the sea-marines of the fleet who were employed in giving orders on shore, if I did not notice the order and regularity as well as the great exertion which every duty was performed, and the discipline which was observed in camp; not a complaint has been made to me of any kind on their part.

Captain Ramsay, R.N., in charge of the detachment and from Colonel Graham, in command of the 1st Marines, I have received the most ready assistance, for which my acknowledgments are due. Captain Ord, my Brigade-Major, has been very active and zealous, and in addition to his duties he offered his services, and took his post as an engineer, during the period our batteries were erecting. I have also to express how indebted I am to my naval aide-de-camp, the Hon. Edward Cochrane, for the assistance he has afforded me throughout our operations, and since I have been deprived of the services of Lieut. Cowell, he has performed that officer's duty, so far as a naval man could perform military duties.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) HARRY D. JONES,
Brigadier-General.

P.S.—I have omitted to mention the services of Captain King, Royal Engineers, who laid out with great judgment the road up the hill leading to the breaching battery. My thanks are due to him and Lieut. Nugent for the able and zealous manner in which they performed the harassing duties which fell to their lot. The Royal Sappers and Miners have distinguished themselves by their good conduct, and in the construction of the batteries.

RECONNAISSANCE OF THE ENEMY'S GUN BOATS AND STEAMERS AT ABO.

No. 410. Duke of Wellington, Led Sund,
SIR. August 27, 1854.

Having received information that Russian troops and gun boats were amongst the islands, I sent Captain Scott with a small squadron, as per

* to find them out, and I beg to enclose his le report.

Captain Scott threaded his way through the in a most persevering manner, as their ps will see by the chart I send ; his ships peatedly on shore, and the Odin no less ine times, before they discovered the gun boats and steamers lying behind a boom, supported on each side by batteries number of troops, covering the town of here they have collected a large force.

I take this opportunity of bringing under Lordships' notice the very great exertions of surveying officers, Captain Sullivan, assisted Evans, Master of the Lightning, and under Otter, of the Alban ; and I have no on in saying, that it is owing to their as this fleet have found their way, with atively little damage, into creeks and never intended for ships-of-the-line ; day ight have they worked, and worked sucy ; Commander Otter is an old officer, and orthy of promotion, and Captain Sullivan assisting surveyor, deserve the protection

Her Majesty's ship Odin, Led Sund,

I have the honour to state that in pursuance r orders, dated the 18th of August, I pro-

* Odin, Alban, Gorgon, Driver.

Gorgon, and Driver, under my command, towards Kumblinge, and the islands east of it.

2. Having procured a pilot at Dagerby, we felt our way on with boats and leads through a most difficult and intricate navigation, in the course of which every ship has been on shore (Gorgon and Odin frequently), but we hope with no further injury than that done to the copper in various places.

3. At Kumblinge and the adjacent islands I was unable to obtain any information of troops or gunboats, but learnt on Sunday, at Asterholm, that a small fast steamboat from Abo was in our immediate vicinity.

4. Rather than return to your flag without intelligence, I resolved to attempt a passage to Abo, and on Monday at daylight, leaving the larger ships at anchor, I took all the masters in the Alban, surveyed and buoyed off a passage for ten miles to Bergham, and then returned for the other ships, but the Gorgon grounding, delayed us for that night.

5. On Tuesday we made our way in safety into the comparatively main open track to Abo, beyond Bergham; at two P.M., observed a small steamer watching us, and at three P.M., several gunboats moving a body of troops from the point (one and a half miles to the north-west) up to the chain across the narrow entrance to the harbour.

6. Having approached to within 3,000 yards the Alban stood in to sound. The entrance of the harbour was closed by two impediments, the one in front appeared to be a chain laid on a floating platform, the other of stakes and booms, between which the gun boats were stationed at regular intervals, and the steam vessels (four in number) were under the shelter of the points.

7. About 4 P.M. the Alban fired the first shell, which burst over one of the gunboats. I then enced firing and was followed at intervals by the Argon and Driver, but with little or no effect we could discover, except that of fully answering my purpose in drawing a return from the masked batteries and gunboats. Only one of the guns at the end of the boom mounted a gun of a large calibre and long range, but which was concealed from our view by a point of land. Others, three in number, about one mile to the west of the boom, as far as we could judge, mounted in any one case more than five, or more than three small guns. A fort, of apparently mounting nine large guns, at a distance, constructed to command both passages, fired repeatedly, but the shells invariably fell a very short distance beyond the south end of Little Beckholm.

As my object was not to attack Abo, but to test its defences, I contented myself with firing a shot occasionally at the gun boats, or what ever looked like a masked battery. In the evening Commander Otter, in the most zealous gallant manner, after going as close as it was possible in the Alban, pulled in with his gig, firing just within range of the gun boats and gunnies, which were all the time keeping up a constant fire.

The sum of the information I have been able to obtain with his assistance, and that of Commander Macroft and Hobart, amounts to this—seven gun boats, two guns each, and about twenty guns on each side, four steam vessels (all small), having the flag with cross anchors in it, and another was observed steaming away through the channel to the eastward of Beckholm. Three (if not four) masked batteries, and another I think in the process of construction, for the position of which I refer you to the very clear delineation executed by Commander Otter.

4. 4 K

10. The Channel appears to be very narrow, and the thick woods were evidently full of soldiers. We learnt that our arrival had been anticipated (as we expected, knowing that we had been watched by a steamer for some days), and that four thousand additional troops had been sent on the previous day, and five thousand more were expected to arrive on the following day; that there were six steamers, five small and one large (the latter we did not see), and eighteen boats and two guns, and eighty men, besides soldiers in each.

The weather was so bad on Thursday, that I was detained under Bergo, and went into Bomarsund this morning; when, having communicated with Captain Warden, and received his despatches, I proceeded to join your flag.

I have only to add my very anxious hope that my proceedings may meet with the approbation of the Commander-in-Chief.

I have, &c.,

FRANCIS SCOTT,

Captain.

Enclosure No. 2 in Sir Charles Napier's Letter,
No. 410.

Her Majesty's ship Odin, Led Sund,

SIR,

August 25, 1854.

In returning to your flag from detached service with the squadron you did me the honour to place under my orders, it is my gratifying duty to express to you how well and ably I have been supported by Commanders Otter, Cracroft, and Hobart, in their respective ships, during my late examination of Abo and its defences, and engagement with the batteries and gunboats at that place; and I beg to offer my humble testimony to ability, zeal, and great exertions during a of very difficult and harassing duties.

sire most particularly to call your attention services performed by Commander Otter that time. Nothing but the most unceasing obvious efforts of a clever, indefatigable, and s officer could have performed the duties I ed of him, and which alone enabled me to the information herewith enclosed, and to ne a place so difficult of access and so little as Abo, in the limited time to which I was ted by you.

der the above circumstances, upon public ds, and for the advantage of the naval e, which I know you have so much at heart, to urge your recommendation of that officer utenant William Mould, senior and gunutenant of this ship, to the Lords Comners of the Admiralty for that promotion constant and valuable services have so long d them to expect and hope for.

I have, &c.,

FRANCIS SCOTT, Captain.

GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH.DIRECTIONS AND REGULATIONS OF THE GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, issued under authority of the Nuisances Removal and Diseases Prevention Act, 1848.

(ENGLAND AND WALES).

In exercise of the authority vested in us, we, the General Board of Health, direct the Guardians and Overseers in all unions, parishes, and places in England and Wales, as follows :

I. To have made out a list of the places within the union or parish where cases of cholera, diarrhoea, or any epidemic or endemic disease, may have lately been frequent, and to give the list or portions of the list relating to the particular districts to the Medical Officers of each district to which it shall relate.

And to require the Medical Officer to visit the places within his district named in such list, and examine the houses as to their present condition, or as to any predisposing and removable causes of disease likely to affect the inmates.

II. To direct their medical officer to give a written list to the guardians of all places in a state dangerous to health, or needing cleansing, and of filthy and unwholesome dwelling-houses, and of all nuisances within his knowledge that may be abated, cleansed, and removed under these regulations.

III. To see that all Town Councils, Commissioners under Local Acts, Local Boards of Health, Highway Boards, Surveyors and District or Assistant Surveyors of Highways, Road Trustees or Commissioners, County Surveyors, and others now by law entrusted with the controul of streets and places within the parts to which these Directions and Regulations extend, do exert their s for the cleansing of all places under their ul, particularly those included in the above-list of the Medical Officer.

Board of Trade (Department of Science and Art.)

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION OF 1855.

At the Council Chamber, Whitehall, the 12th day of September, 1854.

By the Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council appointed for the consideration of all matters relating to Trade and Foreign Plantations.

MY Lords have had under consideration the best means of apportioning the space placed at their disposal by the French Imperial Commission among the various intending exhibitors, in such a way as to secure the most complete representation of our national industry which that space admits of.

In compliance with Art. 9, of the Regulations of the Imperial Commission, my Lords forwarded, on the 15th August (the day appointed), a return of the applications received up to that date, representing 2,130 exhibitors, who had applied for 348,625 square feet of horizontal space, including the necessary addition for passages.

The Imperial Commission have announced their intention of allotting 15,000 square metres (162,000 square feet), including passages, to this country, a quantity exceeding by 62,000 square feet the amount allotted to France in 1851, and must therefore be considered as a liberal allowance. It is, however, obvious that the demands of the United Kingdom must be materially reduced, in order to bring them within the prescribed limits.

Up to this time no judgment has been passed upon the character of the applications, although it must be evident that one part of them is more likely than another to reflect credit upon our industry ; and that though there are few applications which do not include of public interest and value, the general of nearly the whole will be improved, if rs should select only their most important ons.

ss such a judgment is evidently beyond petence of the officers appointed by my attend to the business of the Exhibition, upon the exhibitors themselves, and the tees formed to represent their interests, Lords must depend for undertaking that , which in other countries is generally d by functionaries appointed by the State.

ords have therefore directed—

- That the necessary allowance shall be made for passages.
- . That the net space shall be broadly divided among the various classes of manufacture.
- . That a small reserve be made for the completion of such departments as may be unrepresented by the demands received ; and—
- . The remainder subdivided among the various Committees, partly in proportion to the number and character of the applications that have been received, and partly in proportion to the scale upon which each kind of industry is carried on in a locality.

Committee will then be requested to make division of the space thus allotted among ding exhibitors as will be most creditable district, or to the particular branch of which they represent.

The Committees to which the demands will be referred, will be as follows :—

- 1st. For Machinery and Civil Engineering.—
The Council of the Institution of Civil Engineers.
- 2nd Agricultural Machinery. — The Committee appointed by the Royal Agricultural Society.
- 3rd. Manufactures (Metropolis).—The Associate Committees for particular Trades.
- 4th. Manufactures (Provinces).—The Local Committees formed at Aberdeen, Arbroath, Belfast, Birmingham, Bradford, Derby, Dublin, Dudley, Dundee, Dunfermline, Edinburgh, Galashiels, Glasgow, Greenock, Huddersfield, Leeds, Macclesfield, Manchester, Norwich, Nottingham, Paisley, Preston, Sheffield, Staffordshire Potteries, Stockport, Sunderland, Trowbridge, Walsall, Wolverhampton.

Signed at Washington, June 5, 1854.

[Ratifications exchanged at Washington, September 9, 1854.]

Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, being equally desirous with the Government of the United States, to avoid further misunderstanding between their respective subjects and citizens in regard to the extent of the right of fishing on the coasts of British North America, secured to each by Article I. of a Convention between Great Britain and the United States, signed at London on the 20th day of October, 1818; and being also desirous to regulate the commerce and navigation between their respective territories and people, and more especially between Her Majesty's possessions in North America and the United States, in such manner as to render the same reciprocally beneficial and satisfactory, have respectively named Plenipotentiaries to confer and agree thereupon; that is to say:

Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, James, Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, Lord Bruce and Elgin, a Peer of the United Kingdom, Knight of the Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle, and Governor-General in and over all Her Britannic Majesty's Provinces on the Continent of North America, and in and over the Island of Prince Edward;

And the President of the United States of America, William L. Marcy, Secretary of State of the United States;

Who, after having communicated to each other respective full powers, found in good and due have agreed upon the following Articles:

ARTICLE I.

is agreed by the High Contracting Parties, in addition to the liberty secured to the United States' fishermen by the above mentioned Convention of October, 20, 1818, of taking, curing, drying fish on certain coasts of the British American Colonies therein defined, the inhabitants of the United States shall have, in common with the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind, not shell-fish, on the sea-coasts and shores, and the bays, harbours, and creeks of Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward's Island, and of the several islands thereunto adjacent, not being restricted to any distance from the shore; with permission to land upon the coasts and shores of those colonies and the islands thereof, also upon the Magdalon islands, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish: provided that in so doing they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with the rights of British fishermen in the peaceable use of any part of the said coast in their occupancy for the same purpose.

And it is further agreed that in order to prevent any disputes as to the places to which the Convention of exclusive right to British fishermen contained in this Article, and that of fishermen of the United States contained in the next succeeding Article, apply, each of the High Contracting Parties, on the application of either to the other, shall, within six months thereafter, appoint a Commissioner. The said Commissioners, before proceeding to any business, shall make and subscribe a solemn declaration that they will impartially and carefully examine and decide, to the best of their judgment, and according to justice and equity without fear, favour, or affection to their own country, upon all such places as are intended to be reserved and excluded from the common liberty of fishing under this and the next succeeding Article; and such declaration shall be entered on the record of their proceedings. The Commissioners shall name some third person to act as an Arbitrator or Umpire in any case or cases on which they may themselves differ in opinion. If they should not be able to agree upon the name of such third person, they shall each name a person, and it shall be determined by lot which of the two persons so named shall be the Arbitrator or Umpire in cases of difference or disagreement between the Commissioners. The person so to be chosen to be Arbitrator or Umpire shall, before proceeding to act as such in any case, make and subscribe a solemn declaration in a form similar to that which shall already have been made and subscribed by the Commissioners, which shall be entered on the record of their proceedings. In the event of the death, absence, or incapacity of either of the Commissioners or of the Arbitrator or Umpire, or of their or his omitting, declining, or ceasing to act as such Commissioner, Arbitrator, or Umpire, another and different person shall be appointed or named as aforesaid, to act as such Commissioner, Arbitrator, or Umpire, in the place and stead of the person so originally appointed or named as aforesaid, and shall make and subscribe such declaration as aforesaid.

h Commissioners shall proceed to examine asts of the North American provinces and United States embraced within the pros of the first and second Articles of this y, and shall designate the places reserved by id Articles from the common right of fishing n.

ARTICLE II.

British subjects shall have, in common with tizens of the United States, the liberty to n sea-coasts and shores of the United States aid coasts in their occupancy for the same se.

 River St. Lawrence and the canals in Canada as the means of communicating between the Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean, with their

And it is further agreed, that no export duty or other duty shall be levied on lumber or timber of any kind cut on that portion of the American territory in the State of Maine watered by the River St. John and its tributaries and floated down that river to the sea, when the same is shipped to the United States from the province of New Brunswick.

Such assent having been given, the Treaty shall remain in force for ten years from the date at which it may come into operation, and further, until the expiration of twelve months after either of the High Contracting Parties shall give notice to the other of its wish to terminate the same; each of the High Contracting Parties being at liberty to give such notice to the other at the end of the said term of ten years, or at any time afterwards.

It is clearly understood, however, that this stipulation is not intended to affect the reservation made by Article IV. of the present Treaty with regard the right of temporarily suspending the operation of Articles III. and IV. thereof.

ARTICLE VI.

And it is hereby further agreed, that the provisions and stipulations of the foregoing Articles shall extend to the Island of Newfoundland, so far as they are applicable to that colony. But if the Imperial Parliament, the Provincial Parliament of Newfoundland, or the Congress of the United States, shall not embrace, in their laws passed for carrying this Treaty into effect, the assent of Newfoundland, then this Article shall have no effect; but the omission to make provision by law to give it effect, by either of the legislative bodies aforesaid, shall not in any way vitiate the remaining Articles of this Treaty.

an extract and a copy, have been received by the Duke of Newcastle from General Lord Raglan, G.C.B. :

act of a Despatch from General Lord Raglan, G.C.B., to the Duke of Newcastle.

Varna, August 29, 1854.

The embarkation is proceeding rapidly and successfully, thanks to the able arrangements of Vice-Admiral Sir Edmund Lyons, and the unceasing exertions of the officers and men under his orders. It is impossible for me to express in adequate terms my sense of the value of the assistance the Army under my command derives from the Royal Navy.

The same feeling prevails from the highest to the lowest; from Vice-Admiral Dundas to the youngest sailor, an ardent desire to co-operate by every possible means is manifest throughout; and I am proud of being associated with men who are animated by such a spirit, and are so entirely devoted to the service of their country.

*Camp above Old Fort Bay,
September 18, 1854.*

LORD DUKE,
I do myself the honour to acquaint your Grace, that the combined Fleets and their contingents appeared in the Bay of Eupatoria on the 14th instant, and in the course of the following day proceeded some miles to the southward, where the Allied Armies commenced disembarking early in the morning of the 14th,—the English in the Bay below Old Fort, the English in the next Bay nearer to Eupatoria,—and before the whole of the British Infantry, and some Artillery, and most of the French troops, were on

Shortly before dark, the weather unfortunately changed, and it became hazardous to attempt to continue landing either troops or guns. The surf on the beach impeded the operation the following morning; and since, on more than one occasion; but thanks to the great exertions of the Navy, under the able and active superintendence of Rear-Admiral Sir Edmund Lyons, who was charged with the whole arrangement, every obstacle has been overcome, and I am now enabled to report to your Grace that the disembarkations have been completed.

I should not do justice to my own feelings, or to those of the troops I have the honour to command, if I did not prominently bring to the knowledge of your Grace, the deep sense entertained by all, of the invaluable services rendered by Her Majesty's Navy.

The spirit by which both officers and men were animated, made them regardless of danger, of fatigue, and indeed of every consideration but that of performing an arduous and important duty; and that duty they discharged to the admiration of all who had the good fortune to witness their unceasing efforts to land horses and carriages, with the utmost expedition and safety, under frequently the most trying circumstances.

The Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a Despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Stockholm, enclosing a translation of a Proclamation issued by the Swedish Ministry of Marine (copy of which is subjoined), notifying the "Flagmarks" which have been set up on certain shoals in the Gulf of Bothnia.

(Copy.)

(Translation.)

The Royal Administration of Marine announces, for the information and guidance of Mariners, that according to His Majesty's gracious command, a great Flagmark has been set up on the east side of each of the two Fuingrunds, and on Grundkallegrund, situate in the South Qrarken, east of "Grason," viz.:

East Fuingrund,

the shallowest portion of which is hardly 2 fathoms deep, with an extent of about 700 fathoms in length, from W.S.W. to E.N.E., in an average of 4 fathoms of water. East of the shallowest spot, at a distance of about 500 fathoms, $5\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms deep,

Large mark is moored, the iron cone of which is on an iron pole 12 feet long, painted white, and furnished at the top with a large red ball, which is visible at a distance of $\frac{1}{2}$ geographical mile. The shoal can be sounded up to from the north.

West Fuingrund,

At its shallowest spot only from 5 to 7 feet water. The shoal, which is of a triangular form, has its west sides 4 and 700 fathoms in length in the respective directions of N.W. and S.E. About 330 fathoms from the shallowest point, and east of the shoal, in $6\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms water, a mark is set up of similar size and form to that on the east shoal, but the pole is painted red and its ball white; it also is visible at a distance of $\frac{1}{2}$ geographical mile. This shoal cannot be sounded up to from the north side with any security.

Grundkallegrund.

At this extensive shoal, the limits of which are not fixed, are found alternately, deep water up to 100 fathoms and more, great pieces of rock, and rounded stones, one of which is visible above the water. East of one of these shallow points, which is, however, no stone above the water, a large mark is moored, which has a pole 15 feet long, the upper end of which is furnished with a red lantern. The mark stands in a depth of 9 fathoms, and about 330 fathoms from the Shallows of the Sound. This mark is visible about a geographical mile off in favourable weather. So far as is known, this shoal, the extent of which from the S is about a geographical mile, cannot be sounded up to. To avoid it, one must keep eastward till Understen, or some other known spot is in sight, by which the course can be shaped.

All the directions here given are reckoned by well regulated compasses.

(Copy.)

(Translation.)

By the highest authority it has been graciously resolved :—

First. — That along the whole coast from the Swedish Frontiers to Bergen, that town and harbour, with channels leading to it, all restrictions with respect to cholera on vessels arriving from an infected or uninfected port in the country or abroad, are annulled, unless during the voyage they have had, or on arrival they have, any one on board sick of, or dead from, malignant cholera; in which case quarantine will have to be observed in conformity with the 1 § of the Royal Resolution of the 25th June, 1849.

Second.—That with respect to the quarantine in the ports of the kingdom, the same rule is to be observed as regards vessels arriving from a national port, but conformable to the existing regulations for vessels arriving from foreign ports.

ird.—That all quarantine against cholera in ed places is abrogated.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

The Minister of Marine gives further notice, that the lights on the two newly erected light-houses on the Island of Schiermonnikoog have been lighted on the evening of the 1st of September for the first time, and since that day burn every night from sunset to sunrise; that the two fixed lenticular lamp lights aforesaid, being of the third size, are each placed on a round tower of stone, on the sandhills, standing N.W. by N. and S.E. by S., at a distance of 1008 Netherland ells (3211 Rhineland feet) from each other.

The most southerly and highest light stands 44·9 ells (143 Rhineland feet) above ordinary high water, in $53^{\circ} 28' 56''$ northern latitude, and $6^{\circ} 9' 49''$ longitude east of Greenwich; illumines a bow of the horizon of 245° , namely, from E.N.E., through the north and west, to the south.

The most northerly light stands 42·30 ells (135 Rhineland feet) above ordinary high water, in $53^{\circ} 29' 14''$ northern latitude, and $6^{\circ} 9' 3''$ longitude east of Greenwich; illumines a bow of the horizon of 135° , and likewise from E.N.E, through the north, to W.N.W.

According to observations taken from the deck of a pilot boat, with the eye $3\frac{1}{2}$ Netherland ells (11 Rhineland feet) above the surface of the water, it appears—

That the Lights of Schiermonnikoog, bearing W.S.W. (rather west), and at the same time the Light of Borkum, bearing S.E. $\frac{1}{4}$ S. at the depth of fully $7\frac{1}{2}$ à 8 fathoms, are lost sight of or declined (and the most northerly first) at a distance of fully $3\frac{1}{2}$ German sea miles (14 English

These lights, bearing S.E. by S. to S.E., the eye at the same elevation above the surface of the water, then at 14 fathoms' depth, with greyish sand bottom and with the lights level with the horizon to the eye, steering S.W. by S. S.W. towards the coast, the most northerly disappears in the E.S.E. (rather east), being at $5\frac{1}{2}$ and nearly 6 fathoms' depth, close to the Ameland shore, the steeple of Nes on end bearing S.W., which cross-bearing accordingly gives a distance there of fully $3\frac{1}{4}$ miles (English miles) from the most northerly light Piermonnikoog.

It has likewise been found that coming round from sea, and getting both these lights in sight in the W.S.W., and steering for them, one is clear and free of the west point of the Westm Reef and the Geldzak Shoal, at $4\frac{1}{2}$ to 5 fathoms' depth.

By keeping these lights together in one and the same line, bearing S.E. by S., this direction is very favourable for observation above the Friesland Sea side, towards the west and south side, the southerly light remains visible to between the Zoutkamp and the Zoutkamp, in the passage between the Zoutkamp and the Zoutkamp, somewhat S.E. of the buoy called the Zoutkamp, near the Vlaken or Schelphoek, where the light then diminishes and disappears in the distance.

It has also been observed that the Lights of Piermonnikoog, at ordinary view and with the lights (12 $\frac{3}{4}$ Rhineland feet) above water, are visible at a distance of fully four miles (16 English miles), more or less, according to the state of the atmosphere, and in proportion as the eye is elevated above the surface of the water.

These Lights retain a bright brilliancy until they are extinguished; they likewise rise brightly above the horizon, and only there, where according to the above-described lines of compass, illumination commences or terminates; they neither increase or decrease suddenly, but gradually: at two miles' distance from these Lighthouses, both Lights are visible at equal heights above the horizon.

The above bearings are according to non-adjusted compass, the non-adjustment calculated at $21^{\circ} 42'$ N.W., and the depth as at ordinary low water.

Constantinople, September 30, 1854, 10 p.m.

Marshal St. Arnaud is dead. His remains have just arrived here on board the Bertholet, which is appointed to convey them to France. This vessel brings news from the Crimea up to the 29th in the morning. It was supposed that Prince Menchikoff had returned to Sevastopol. The Allies were on the point of commencing the siege. General Canrobert had succeeded to the command of the French Army.

BATTLE OF THE ALMA.

War Department, October 8, 1854, 8½ o'clock a.m.

MAJOR the Lord Burghersh arrived this morning with a Despatch from General the Lord Raglan, G.C.B., to His Grace the Duke of Newcastle, of which the following is a copy:

Head Quarters, Katscha River,

MY LORD DUKE, September 23, 1854.

I have the honour to inform your Grace, that the Allied Troops attacked the position occupied by the Russian Army, behind the Alma, on the

th instant; and I have great satisfaction in ding, that they succeeded, in less than three urs, in driving the enemy from every part of e ground which they had held in the morning,
d in establishing themselves upon it.

The English and French Armies moved out of eir first encampment in the Crimea on the 19th d bivouacked for the night on the left bank of e Bulganac, the former having previously suprted the advance of a part of the Earl of Car-gan's brigade of Light Cavalry, which had the ect of inducing the enemy to move up a large dy of Dragoons and Cosaques, with artillery.

On this, the first occasion of the English en-untering the Russian force, it was impossible for y troops to exhibit more steadiness, than did this rtion of Her Majesty's cavalry.

It fell back upon its supports with the most rfect regularity under the fire of the Artillery, hich was quickly silenced by that of the bat-ries I caused to be brought into action.

Our loss amounted to only four men wounded.

The day's march had been most wearisome and, der a burning sun, the absence of water, until e reached the insignificant but welcome stream the Bulganac, made it to be severely felt.

Both Armies moved towards the Alma the folwing morning, and it was arranged that Marshal
. Arnaud should assail the enemy's left by ossing the river at its junction with the sea, and mediately above it, and that the remainder of e French divisions should move up the heights their front, whilst the English Army should tack the right and centre of the enemy's position.

In order that the gallantry exhibited by Her ajesty's troops, and the difficulties they had to eet may be fairly estimated, I deem it right, even the risk of being considered tedious, to endeavour to make your Grace acquainted with the position the Russians had taken up.

It crossed the great road about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the sea, and is very strong by nature.

The bold and almost precipitous range of heights, of from 350 to 400 feet, that from the sea closely border the left bank of the river here ceases and formed their left, and turning thence round a great amphitheatre or wide valley, terminates at a salient pinnacle where their right rested, and whence the descent to the plain was more gradual. The front was about two miles in extent.

Across the mouth of this great opening is a lower ridge at different heights, varying from 60 to 150 feet, parallel to the river, and at distances from it of from 600 to 800 yards.

The river itself is generally fordable for troops, but its banks are extremely rugged, and in most parts steep; the willows along it had been cut down in order to prevent them from affording cover to the attacking party, and in fact everything had been done to deprive an assailant of any species of shelter.

In front of the position on the right bank, at about 200 yards from the Alma, is the village of Bouliouk, and near it a timber bridge, which had been partly destroyed by the enemy.

The high pinnacle and ridge before alluded to was the key of the position, and consequently, there the greatest preparations had been made for defence.

Half way down the height, and across its front was a trench of the extent of some hundred yards, to afford cover against an advance up the even steep slope of the hill. On the right, and a little retired, was a powerful covered battery armed with heavy guns, which flanked the whole of the right of the position.

artillery, at the same time, was posted at the points that best commanded the passage of the river and its approaches generally.

On the slopes of these hills (forming a sort of natural land) were placed dense masses of the enemy's infantry, whilst on the heights above his great reserve, the whole amounting, it is supposed, to between 45,000 and 50,000 men.

The combined Armies advanced on the same movement, Her Majesty's troops in contiguous parallel columns, with the front of two divisions covered by light infantry and a troop of horse artillery, the 2nd Division, under Lieutenant-General Sir De Lacy Evans, forming the right, touching the left of the 3rd Division of the British Army, under His Imperial Highness Prince Napoleon, and the Light Division, under Lieutenant-General Sir George Brown, the left; the first being supported by the 3rd Division, under Lieutenant-General Sir Richard England, the last by the 1st Division, commanded by Lieutenant-General His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge.

The 4th Division, under Lieutenant-General Sir George Cathcart, and the cavalry under Lieutenant-General the Earl of Lucan, were held in reserve to protect the left flank and rear against the bodies of the enemy's cavalry, which had not been seen in those directions.

On approaching to near the fire of the guns, which soon became extremely formidable, the two leading divisions deployed into line, and advanced to attack the front, and the supporting divisions followed the movement. Hardly had this taken place, when the village of Bouliouk, immediately opposite the centre, was fired by the enemy at all points, creating a continuous blaze for three hundred yards, obscuring their position and rendering a passage through it impracticable. Two regiments of Brigadier-General Adams' brigade, part of Sir De Lacy Evans' division, had in consequence, to pass the river at a deep and difficult ford to the right under a sharp fire, whilst his first brigade, under Major-General Pennefather, and the remaining regiment of Brigadier-General Adams crossed to the left of the conflagration, opposed by the enemy's artillery from the heights above, and pressed on towards the left of their position, with the utmost gallantry and steadiness.

In the meanwhile, the Light Division, under Sir George Brown, effected the passage of the Alma in his immediate front. The banks of the river itself were, from their rugged and broken nature, most serious obstacles, and the vineyards, through which the troops had to pass, and the trees which the enemy had felled, created additional impediments, rendering every species of formation, under a galling fire, nearly an impossibility. Lieutenant-General Sir George Brown advanced against the enemy under great disadvantages.

In this difficult operation he nevertheless persevered, and the 1st Brigade, under Major-General Codrington, succeeded in carrying a redoubt, materially aided by the judicious and steady manner in which Brigadier-General Buller moved on the left flank, and by the advance of four companies of the Rifle Brigade, under Major Norcott, who promises to be a distinguished officer of light troops.

The heavy fire of grape and musketry, however, to which the troops were exposed, and the losses consequently sustained by the 7th, 23rd, and 33rd Regiments, obliged this brigade partially to relinquish its hold.

By this time, however, the Duke of Cambridge succeeded in crossing the river, and had moved support, and a brilliant advance of the British Foot Guards, under Major-General Benbow, drove the enemy back, and secured the final success of the work.

The Highland Brigade, under Major-General Colin Campbell, advanced in admirable order and readiness up the high ground to the left, and in co-operation with the Guards; and Major-General Pennefather's Brigade, which had been connected with the right of the Light Division, drove the enemy completely to abandon the position they had taken such pains to defend and

The 95th Regiment, immediately on the right of the Royal Fusiliers in the advance, suffered severely with that corps an immense loss.

The aid of the Royal Artillery in all these operations was most effectual. The exertions of the Field Officers and the Captains of troops and the efforts to get the guns into action were unceasing, and the precision of their fire materially contributed to the great results of the day.

Lieutenant-General Sir Richard England directed his division to the immediate support of the troops in advance, and Lieutenant-General the Marquis of Cathcart was actively engaged in watching the left flank.

The nature of the ground did not admit of the employment of the cavalry under the Earl of St. Albans; but they succeeded in taking some prisoners at the close of the battle.

The detail of these operations which I have given into as far as the space of a despatch would permit, your Grace will perceive that the services rendered by the General and other Officers of the Division who were engaged, were of no ordinary character; and I have great pleasure in submitting them for your Grace's most favourable consideration.

The mode in which Lieutenant-General Sir George Brown conducted his division under the most trying circumstances, demands the expression of my warmest approbation. The fire to which his division was subjected, and the difficulties he had to contend against, afford no small proof that his best energies were applied to the successful discharge of his duty.

I must speak in corresponding terms of Lieutenant-General Sir De Lacy Evans, who likewise conducted his division to my perfect satisfaction, and exhibited equal coolness and judgment in carrying out a most difficult operation.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge brought his division into action in support of the Light Division with great ability, and had for the first time an opportunity of showing the enemy his devotion to Her Majesty, and to the profession of which he is so distinguished a member.

My best thanks are due to Lieutenant-General Sir R. England, Lieutenant-General the Honourable Sir George Cathcart, and Lieutenant-General the Earl of Lucan, for their cordial assistance wherever it could be afforded, and I feel it my duty especially to recommend to your Grace's notice the distinguished conduct of Major-General Bentinck, Major-General Sir Colin Campbell, Major-General Pennefather, Major-General Codrington, Brigadier-General Adams, and Brigadier-General Buller.

In the affair of the previous day, Major-General the Earl of Cardigan exhibited the utmost spirit and coolness, and kept his brigade under perfect command.

n to cholera, as has Major Wellesley, who tenant Derriman, R.N., the Commander of radoc, accompanied me during the whole of eration, and rendered me an essential ser-y a close observation of the enemy's move-which his practised eye enabled him accu-to watch.

ment to say that Lieutenant-Colonel La-
, who was attached to my head quarters, e Emperor of the French, fell into the 's hands on the 19th, on his return from Napoleon's division, where he had obligingly gone at my request, with a communication to his Imperial Highness.

This misfortune is deeply regretted, both by myself and the officers of my personal Staff.

The other officer placed with me under similar circumstances, Major Vico, afforded me all the assistance in his power, sparing no exertion to be of use.

I cannot omit to make known to your Grace the cheerfulness with which the regimental officers of the Army have submitted to most unusual privations.

My anxiety to bring into the country every cavalry and infantry soldier who was available, prevented me from embarking their baggage animals, and these officers have with them at this moment nothing but what they can carry, and they, equally with the men, are without tents or covering of any kind.

I have not heard a single murmur. All seem impressed with the necessity of the arrangement; and they feel, I trust, satisfied that I shall bring up their bât horses at the earliest moment.

The conduct of the troops has been admirable. When it is considered that they have suffered severely from sickness during the last two months; that since they landed in the Crimea, they have been exposed to the extremes of wet, cold, and heat; that the daily toil to provide themselves with water has been excessive, and that they have been pursued by cholera to the very battle field, I do not go beyond the truth in declaring that they merit the highest commendation.

In the ardour of attack they forgot all they had endured, and displayed that high courage, that gallant spirit, for which the British soldier is ever distinguished; and, under the heaviest fire they ned the same determination to conquer, as d exhibited before they went into action.

uld be wanting in my duty, my Lord Duke, l not express to your Grace, in the most manner, my deep feeling of gratitude to cers and men of the Royal Navy for the ble assistance they afforded the Army upon n every occasion where it could be brought upon our operations.

ntense anxiety; and as the best way of g their participation in our success, and ympathy in the sufferings of the wounded, ver ceased, from the close of the battle till the ground this morning, to provide for and wounded, and to carry them down to lunteered to participate, an act which I ever cease to recollect with the warmest ilness.

Two General Officers, Major-Generals Karganoff and Shokanoff fell into our hands. The former is very badly wounded.

I will not attempt to describe the movements of the French Army; that will be done by an abler hand; but it is due to them to say that their operations were eminently successful, and that under the guidance of their distinguished commander Marshal St. Arnaud, they manifested the utmost gallantry, the greatest ardour for the attack, and the high military qualities for which they are so famed.

This despatch will be delivered to your Grace by Major Lord Burghersh, who is capable of affording you the fullest information, and whom I beg to recommend to your especial notice.

GENERAL ORDER.—No. 1.

The Commander of the Forces congratulates the troops on the brilliant success that attended their unrivalled efforts in the battle of the 20th August, on which occasion they carried a most formidable position, defended by large masses of Russian infantry and a most powerful and numerous artillery.

Their conduct was in unison with that of our brave Allies, whose spirited and successful attack on the left of the heights occupied by the enemy cannot fail to have attracted their notice and admiration.

The Commander of the Forces thanks the Army most warmly for its gallant exertions. He witnessed them with pride and satisfaction, and it will be his pleasing duty to report, for the Queen's information, how well they have earned Her Majesty's approbation, and how gloriously maintained the honour of the British name.

Lord Raglan condoles most sincerely with the troops on the loss of so many gallant officers and brave men, whose memory it will be a consolation to their friends to feel, will ever be cherished in the annals of our army.

FROM THE SUPPLEMENT
TO THE
LONDON GAZETTE EXTRAORDINARY
of OCTOBER 8, 1854.

Admiralty, October 8, 1854.

THE Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty have this day received Despatches from Vice-Admiral Dundas, containing intelligence as to the proceedings of Her Majesty's Fleet in the Black Sea, of which the following are copies:—

ATTACK OF THE RUSSIAN ENTRENCHMENTS ON THE ALMA BY THE ALLIED ARMIES.

No. 485.

Britannia, off the Alma,

SIR,

September 21, 1854.

In my letter of the 18th instant (No. 480), I reported to you, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that the Allied Armies were ready to move, and I now beg you acquaint their Lordships that, on the morning of the 19th, they marched to a position about two miles north of the Alma River, where they halted for the night; the French and Turks on the right, the English to the sea, and the English to the left, about two miles inland.

The Russians, with some 5,000 or 6,000 men, artillery, and 15,000 infantry, made a demonstration north of the river, but returned on the approach of the armies, and recrossed the river at sunset.

About noon, on the 20th, the Allies advanced in the same order to force the Russian position and entrenchments south of the Alma. This was completed by 4 o'clock, the Russians retreating rapidly to the eastward of the main road to Sebastopol.

The Russian left fell back before the French rapidly, and their batteries on the right were captured by the bayonet by the English.

Our loss has necessarily been severe, and is estimated at about 1,200 killed and wounded; of the French about 900.

The Russian loss has also been great, two general officers and 3 guns were captured by our troops, but we have few prisoners beyond the wounded; in consequence it is believed of our deficiency of cavalry.

Lieutenant Derriman, of the Caradoc, accompanied the Staff of General Lord Raglan, during the action, and I also sent Lieutenant Glynn of the ship to convey any message to me from his ship.

All the medical officers of the fleet (excepting one on each ship), 600 seamen and marines, and the boats have been assisting the wounded, and conveying them to the transports, that will sail for Constantinople as soon as possible.

I believe it is the intention of the Allied Forces to move to-morrow, and the Sampson which I detached last night with the Terrible, off Sevastopol, has signalized that the Russians were retreating on Sevastopol, and that they have burnt the villages on the Katscha.

I have, &c.,

MOVEMENTS OF THE FLEETS AND ARMIES.

No. 487.

Britannia, off the Katscha,

SIR,

Sept. 23, 1854.

I beg you will inform the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that since my letter to you of the 21st instant (No. 485), the men and boats of the fleet have been employed in bringing from the field (about four miles distant), and carrying on board the transports, the English and Russian officers and men wounded in the battle of the Alma, as well as the sick of the Army.

2. All the medical officers of the different ships have been zealously and usefully occupied in attending them, and I have been obliged to send several assistant-surgeons in the vessels with the wounded to Constantinople.

3. The Vulcan and Andes, with 800 wounded and sick, sailed for Constantinople yesterday, and to-day the Orinoco and Colombo, with 900, including some sixty or seventy Russians, will follow.

Another vessel (by the request of Lord Raglan), with about 500 wounded Russians, will also proceed, under charge of the Fury, to land them at Odessa.

4. On the night of the 24th instant the Russians made a very great alteration in the position of fleet in Sevastopol. I enclose a report by Captain Jones, of the Sampson; and I am attacking the outer line the first favourable opportunity.

Captain Jones also reports that great exertions appear to be making to strengthen the land batteries, as well as those by sea.

New batteries on both sides of the port have been erected, defending the entrances and line of

One, to the north, has heavy guns, of a calibre of 4000 yards, two shots having passed over the Sampson when nearly at that distance.

Provisions for the Army have been landed; the Forces move on to-day towards Sevastopol, accompanied by the Fleets, which have departed off the Katscha.

I have, &c.,

ING OF THE RUSSIAN SHIPS AT THE EN- ANCE OF THE HARBOUR OF SEVASTOPOL.

*Britannia, off the Katscha,
September 24, 1854.*

My letter of yesterday, No. 487, I reported extraordinary change that had taken place the position hitherto maintained by the y's fleet in the harbour of Sevastopol,
I now beg you will acquaint the Lords missioners of the Admiralty, that the same noon, on the appearance of the Allied s in sight of Sevastopol, the whole of the s moored across the harbour were sunk by Russians, leaving their masts more or less water, and I went last evening to the n of the harbour to assure myself of this lar event.

Captain Drummond has examined the harbour morning, and reports that the lower mast of the ships are generally above water; that assage is closed, except perhaps a small space the shoal off the North Battery, and the e booms inside are thus rendered more e.

Eight sail of the line are moored east and west, e of the booms, and three of the ships are d over to give their guns more elevation to over the land to the northward.

An intelligent seaman, a deserter, who ed from Sevastopol on the 22nd, had partly red me for some extraordinary movement.
had informed that the crews of the ships ed across the harbour (to one of which he een attached) had been landed, with the ex-on of a very few in each ship; that the s were plugged ready for sinking; that the guns and stores were all on board; and that the other ships were moored under the south side to defend the harbour from attack from the northward. He reported that the Battle of Alma had greatly dispirited the Russians; that the troops had retreated on Sevastopol without a halt; that he believes the whole Russian force not to exceed 40,000. The man's statements were clear, and on points that came under his own observation were mostly corroborated, and I consider reliance may be placed on his information generally, considering the means his station in life afforded of enabling him to obtain it. At the request of Lord Raglan I have sent him on shore to act as a guide to the army on their approach to the environs of Sevastopol.

3. The Allied Armies moved this afternoon to take up a position to the south of the port of Sevastopol, and the fleet will move so as to meet their arrival there.

I have, &c.,

J. W. D. DUNDAS.

Balaklava, September 28, 1854.

MY LORD DUKE,

I have the greatest satisfaction in acquainting your Grace, that the Army under my command obtained possession of this important place on the 26th instant, and thus established a new and secure base for our future operations.

The Allied Armies quitted their position above the Alma on the morning of the 23rd, and moved across the Katscha, where they halted for the night, and on the following day passed the Belbeck.

It then appeared that the enemy had established a work, which commanded the entrance of the river, and debarred its use for the disembarkation of troops, provisions, and material; and it became expedient to consider whether the line of attack upon the north side should not be abandoned, and another course of operation adopted.

It having after due deliberation, been determined by Marshal St. Arnaud and myself, that we should relinquish our communication with the Katscha, and the hope of establishing it by the Belbeck, and endeavour by a flank march to the left to go round Sevastopol and seize Balaklava, the movement was commenced on the 25th, and completed on the following day by the capture of this place by Her Majesty's troops, which led the advance. The march was attended with great difficulties. On leaving the high road from the Belbeck to Sevastopol, the Army had to traverse a dense wood, in which there was but one road that led in the direction it was necessary to take. That road was left in the first instance to the Cavalry and Artillery; and the divisions were ordered to march by compass and make a way for themselves as well as they could; and, indeed, the Artillery of the Light Division pursued the same course as long as it was found to be possible, but, as the wood became more impracticable, the batteries could not proceed otherwise than by getting into the road above-mentioned.

The Head Quarters of the Army, followed by several batteries of Artillery, were the first to clear the forest, near what is called, in Major Jarvis's map, Mackenzie's Farm, and at once found themselves on the flank and rear of a Russian division, on the march to Baské-Serai.

This was attacked as soon as the cavalry, which had diverged a little into a bye and intricate path, could be brought up. A vast quantity of ammunition and much valuable baggage fell into our hands, and the pursuit was discontinued after about a mile and a half, it being a great object to reach the Tschernaya that evening.

the Russians lost a few men, and some prisoners taken, amongst whom was a Captain of artillery.

The march was then resumed by the descent of a steep and difficult defile into the plains, through which runs the Tschernaya River, and this the army succeeded in reaching shortly before dark, covered in the course of the night by the Light, Second, and Third Divisions; the Fourth Division having been left on the heights above the neck till the following day, to maintain our communication with the Katscha.

This march, which took the enemy quite by surprise, was a very long and toilsome one, and, not at Mackenzie's Farm, where two wells, giving a scanty supply, were found, the troops went without water, but they supported their toils and privations with the utmost cheerfulness and resumed their march to this place on the morning of the 26th.

As they approached Balaklava nothing indicated that it was held in force; but as resistance was met to the advance of the Rifle Brigade, and the batteries were opened from an old castle, as the head of the column shewed itself on the road leading to the town, I deemed it prudent to occupy the flanking heights by the Light Division and the action of Captain Brandling's troop of Horse Artillery on the left; movements terminated by the surrender of the place, which had been occupied by very inconsiderable numbers of the enemy.

Shortly after we had taken possession we were joined by Captain Mends, of the Agamemnon, and soon after by Sir Edmund Lyons himself.

His co-operation was secured to us by the activity and enterprise of Lieutenant Maxse, of Her Majesty's ship Agamemnon, who reached my anchorage on the 5th.

camp on the Tschernaya, on the night of the 25th with despatches, and who volunteered immediately to retrace his steps through the forest, and to communicate to Sir Edmund the importance I attached to his presence at the mouth of the harbour of Balaklava the next morning, which difficult service (from the intricacy of the country infested by Cossacks) he accomplished so effectually that the Admiral was enabled to appear off this harbour at the very moment that our troops shewed themselves upon the heights.

Nothing could be more opportunethan his arrival, and yesterday the magnificent ship that bears his flag entered this beautiful harbour; and the Admiral, as has been his invariable practice, co-operated with the Army in every way possible.

We are busily engaged in disembarking our siege train and provisions, and we are most desirous of undertaking the attack of Sevastopol without the loss of a day. I moved up two divisions yesterday to its immediate neighbourhood, when I was enabled to have a good view of the place; and Lieutenant-General Sir John Burgoyne and General Bisot, the French Chef de Génie are occupied in reconnoitering it closely to-day.

The march of the French Army on the 25th was still more fatiguing and prolonged than ours. Being behind our columns they could not reach Tschernaya till the next day, and I fear must have suffered sadly from want of water.

I regret to have to acquaint your Grace that Marshal St. Arnaud has been compelled, by severe illness, to relinquish the command of the Army. I saw him on the 25th, when he was suffering very much, and he felt it his duty to resign the next morning. I view his retirement with deep concern, having always found in him disposition to act in concert with me. He ce become much worse, and is I fear in a recarious state.

unately he is succeeded by an officer of eputation, General Canrobert, with whom I isified I shall have great pleasure in acting, ho is equally desirous of maintaining the riendly relations with me.

I have, &c.,

Whereas, amidst the glorious successes which, through the power of Almighty God, have attended Our Arms during the present war, many soldiers, sailors and marines, serving in Our Armies and fleets, have gallantly fallen in battle, and other casualties during war; and many who hereafter be engaged in conflict, or in the prosecution of hostilities, may also nobly sacrifice their lives in Our service, while protecting the invaded liberties of Our Ally, and repressing the lawless ambition of Our enemies:

And whereas it hath been represented to Us, that many of Our loving subjects throughout Our Kingdom and Dominions, actuated by a just sense of the sacred rights of those who fall in their Country's service and in support of Our just cause, are anxiously desirous of testifying their loyalty and love to Us and to Our Throne, by a liberal and generous benevolence towards the widows and orphans of those of Our soldiers, sailors, and marines who have been so killed, or who may hereafter die amidst the ravages and casualties of war, and also by their gifts and subscriptions to contribute a portion of those means with which Our nation has been blessed towards the succouring, educating, and relieving those, who, by the loss of their husbands and parents in battle, or by death on active service in the present war, are unable to maintain or to support themselves:

And whereas it is expedient that public measures should be taken, and that preparation should be made for the safe keeping and beneficial application of the several sums of money which may henceforth and from time to time hereafter, during the continuance of this Our Royal Commission, be given, subscribed, or collected, for all or any of the several purposes aforesaid: And also for the purpose of securing such prompt and authentic information as may be required, to aid the just and faithful distribution of the said several sums of money, when so received: And it hath also appeared to Us; that by issuing this Our Royal Commission, greater efficacy, power, and support, may be given to the benevolent desires of Our loving subjects: And also that the respective claims, merits, and necessities of individual claimants will be duly inquired into: And that by permitting assistance to be rendered by the officers of Our civil, military, and naval services, we may prevent the wrong application, by misrepresentation or otherwise, of those contributions which Our loving subjects may hereafter, during the continuance of this Our Royal Commission, for the several purposes aforesaid, generously and benevolently supply:

Now know ye, that We, having taken into Our consideration the premises, and being earnestly desirous, in lasting memory of those who have faithfully fallen in Our service, to encourage the loyal and hearty benevolence of Our loving sub-

, which may hereafter be directed towards the ews and orphans of the soldiers, sailors, and ines of Our forces, who may now or hereafter

FROM THE

LONDON GAZETTE of OCTOBER 17, 1854.

Foreign Office, October 17, 1854.

THE Earl of Clarendon, Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has received from Lord Cowley, Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris, the subjoined copies of a letter, addressed by His Excellency to M. Drouyn de Lhuys, Minister for Foreign Affairs to His Majesty the Emperor of the French, offering the condolence of Her Majesty's Government on the lamented death of the late Marshal St. Arnaud; and of a letter, addressed by M. Drouyn de Lhuys to Lord Cowley, in reply.

Paris, October 10, 1854.

M. LE MINISTRE,

I am desired by Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to take the earliest opportunity of conveying to the Emperor the expression of the deep regret with which the Queen's Government have learnt the intelligence of the death of Marshal St. Arnaud. Her Majesty's Government desire to offer to His Imperial Majesty and to the French People their condolence on an event which has deprived the Emperor and France of the services of so distinguished and brave a General. If anything could mitigate the sorrow that must be felt by the Governments and People of France and England upon this occasion, it must be the satisfaction—though a mournful one—that the Marshal's last moments were preceded and cheered by the triumph of a victory, which will always be glorious in the military annals of both countries.

In requesting your Excellency to convey these sentiments to the knowledge of the Emperor, I trust that I may be permitted to add the expression of my personal regrets for the loss which the Emperor and the French Nation have sustained. To know Marshal St. Arnaud was to like him; for the courtesy and affability of his private life was as remarkable as his courage and firmness in the field.

I avail, &c.,

(Signed) COWLEY.

His Excellency M. Drouyn de Lhuys,
&c., &c., &c.

M. L'AMBASSADEUR,

J'ai placé sous les yeux de l'Empereur la lettre que Votre Excellence m'a fait l'honneur de m'écrire le 10 du courant, et qui contient l'expression des regrets éprouvés par le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté Britannique en apprenant la perte déplorable que la France a faite du Maréchal St. Arnaud. L'Empereur a été vivement touché d'une démarche qui témoigne avec tant d'évidence de l'union de son Gouvernement avec celui de la Reine, et de la part sincère que les deux pays sont désormais appelés à prendre à tout ce qui peut être pour l'un ou pour l'autre un sujet de deuil ou de joie. Si, dans cette circonstance quelque chose a pu adoucir le sentiment douloureux que l'Empereur et la France ont ressenti d'une telle perte, c'est en effet, comme le dit si bien Votre Excellence, la satisfaction qu'a pu emporter en mourant le Maréchal de St. Arnaud qu'il venait d'inscrire son nom à côté de celui d'héroïques alliés sur une des pages les plus glorieuses des annales militaires de l'Angleterre et de la France.

Je n'ai pas besoin, my Lord, d'ajouter que les termes si courtois dans lesquels Votre Excellence s'exprime personnellement sur le Maréchal ont été appréciés comme ils devaient, l'être.

Je m'empresse de saisir, etc.

(Signed) DROUYN DE LHUYS.

Paris, le 12 Octobre, 1854.

(Translation.)

M. L'AMBASSADEUR,

I have laid before the Emperor the letter that your Excellency did me the honour to address to me on the 10th instant, containing the expression of regret felt by the Government of Her Britannic Majesty on learning the lamentable loss which France has sustained by the death of Marshal St. Arnaud. The Emperor has been deeply affected by a proceeding which gives such evidence of the union of this Government with that of the Queen, and of the sincerity with which the two countries are henceforth called upon to participate in all that can be for either of them a subject of mourning or of joy. If, under the present circumstances, any thing could assuage the grief which the Emperor and France have felt at such a loss, it is truly, as our Excellency has so well said, the satisfaction which Marshal St. Arnaud was enabled in dying to experience, that he had just inscribed his name in conjunction with those of heroic Allies on one of the most glorious pages of the military annals of England and France.

I have no need, my Lord, to add that the terms in which your Excellency has so courteously expressed yourself personally in regard to the Marshal, have been duly appreciated.

I hasten, &c.,

TREASURY WARRANT.

Whereas by an Act, passed in the fourth year of the reign of Her present Majesty, intituled “An Act for the regulation of the duties of postage,” power is given to the Postmaster-General to remit any of the rates of British postage for the time being payable by law on the transmission of post letters, newspapers, or other printed papers, to such extent as the Lords of the Treasury shall from time to time direct; and power is also given to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, from time to time, by Warrant under their hands, to alter and fix any of the rates of British or Inland postage payable by law on the transmission by the post of Foreign or Colonial letters or newspapers, or any other printed papers, and to subject the same to rates of postage, according to the weight thereof, and a scale of weight to be contained in such Warrant.

Now we, the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, in exercise of the power or authority in us for such purpose vested in and by the said Act, and of all other powers enabling us in this behalf, do by this Warrant (under the hands of two of us the said Commissioners, by the authority of the statute in that case made and provided) order and direct, that on every letter not exceeding half an ounce in weight, posted in or addressed to any part of the United Kingdom, and sent from or to any commissioned or non-commissioned officer, serjeant, corporal, drummer, trumpeter, fifer or private soldier, employed in Her Majesty's regular forces, artillery, or royal marines, in the Kingdom of Greece, or sent from or to any commissioned or warrant officer, midshipman, master's mate, or seaman employed in Her Majesty's Navy, or any of Her Majesty's ships in Greece, transmitted by the post between any place in the United Kingdom, and any port or place in Greece (the conveyance between the United Kingdom and Greece, being through France, via Marseilles, by French Mediterranean packet boats), there shall be charged and taken in lieu of any rates of postage now payable by law on such letters, an uniform British rate of one penny.

And we direct that on every letter transmitted is mentioned in this Warrant, exceeding half an ounce in weight, there shall be charged, taken, and paid, progressive and additional rates of postage as follows; that is to say:

On every such letter exceeding half an ounce in weight and not exceeding one ounce in weight, two rates of postage.

On every such letter exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces in weight, four rates of postage.

On every such letter exceeding two ounces and not exceeding three ounces in weight, six rates of postage.

And for every ounce in weight above the weight of three ounces, there shall be charged and taken two additional rates of postage; and every fraction of an ounce above the weight of three ounces shall be charged as one additional ounce; and each progressive and additional rate, chargeable under this clause, shall be estimated and charged at the sum which any such letter would be charged with under this Warrant if not exceeding half an ounce in weight.

And we further direct, that in respect of letters sent by any non-commissioned officers, serjeants, corporals, drummers, fifers, private soldiers or seamen, under the regulations of this Warrant, the following conditions shall be observed (that is to say), upon each such letter shall be superscribed the name of the writer, and his class or description, the regiment, detachment, or vessel to which he shall belong; and upon every such letter there shall be written in the handwriting of, and signed by, the officer having at the time the command of the regiment, detachment, or vessel, to which the privileged person belongs, the name of such officer and the name of such regiment, detachment, or vessel.

And we further direct, that in respect to letters received by the post under this Warrant, by any commissioned or warrant officers, midshipmen, or master's mates, or any non-commissioned officers, private soldiers, or seamen, the following conditions shall be observed, that is to say: the postage of each such letter posted in the United Kingdom shall be prepaid, either in money or by the proper stamp or stamps being affixed thereto, at the time of the same being posted; and as to letters received by any non-commissioned officers, private soldiers, or seamen, each letter shall be directed to the privileged person, specifying on the superscription thereof, the regiment, detachment or vessel to which he shall belong.

And we further direct, that if in any case the conditions hereinbefore prescribed be not complied with, the letter shall be charged with the same rates of postage as if this Warrant had not been signed.

And we further direct, that all letters, which shall be sent by the post under the regulations of this Warrant, shall be subject, in addition to the British rates hereby fixed, to the payment of any foreign postage which may be chargeable thereon.

And we further direct, that the several terms and expressions used in this Warrant shall be construed to have the like meaning in all respects as they would have had if inserted in the said recited Act.

Provided, lastly, and we hereby declare and direct, that it shall be lawful for the Commissioners for the time being of Her Majesty's Treasury, or any two of them, by Warrant under their hands, at any time hereafter, to alter or repeal any of the rates hereby altered, or the regulations hereby made, and to make and establish any new or other rates or regulations in lieu thereof, and from time to time to appoint at what time the rates that may be payable are to be paid.

*Board of Trade, Whitehall,

The Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a Despatch from Her Majesty's Consul at Mobile, inclosing a Notice to Mariners (a copy of which is subjoined), issued by the United States' District Inspector of Light-houses at Mobile, relating to buoys and beacons laid down at the entrance to that bay.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

The following buoys, beacons, &c., have been placed to facilitate the entrance to Mobile Bay :—

A bell boat, striped black and white, is anchored in eight fathoms' water, half a mile outside the outer bar : Sand Island Light bearing N.W. by N. $\frac{1}{2}$ N., $2\frac{1}{2}$ statute miles distant. The bell is tolled by the action of the waves.

An iron buoy, striped black and white, is placed in mid channel, just within the Bar, ranging with the bell boat and Sand Island Light.

A black iron buoy on the west side of the main channel, near the north end of the "Sand Island Bank."

A red iron buoy on the east side of the channel, at the edge of the "East Bank," and opposite the black buoy just mentioned.

A black iron buoy on the west side of the channel, at the edge of the "West Bank," and opposite Fort Morgan.

An iron buoy, striped black and white, in mid channel, between Mobile Point and the "Middle-ground."

A red iron buoy on the east side of the main channel, at the west end of the "Middle-ground."

In entering the harbour, red buoys should be left on the starboard hand, and black buoys on the port hand.

Buoys, striped black and white, may be passed on either hand, but should be kept well aboard.

To enter in foggy weather, after passing the bell boat close aboard, run in by compass N.W. by N. $\frac{1}{4}$ N. to the first striped buoy, thence N. by W $\frac{1}{4}$ W. till up with Sand Island Light, and thence the course along mid channel to the upper striped buoy is N. $\frac{1}{4}$ E. From this buoy, running N. W. $\frac{1}{4}$ N. and passing the upper red buoy, we reach the upper anchorage ground of the lower fleet.

After passing the upper red buoy, it is well to steer N. by W. $\frac{3}{4}$ W. till the ship comes to anchor.

Two wooden range beacons, twenty feet high, have been erected on the east end of Sand Island, and two on Mobile Point. All of them will be lighted at night, and will be visible on and near the ranges mentioned.

The seaward beacon at Sand Island is painted white, with a vertical red stripe on the seaward side. It will show a white light, and when ranging with Sand Island Lighthouse, it ranges also with the bell boat, and the striped buoy to lead in over the outer bar.

The inner beacon at Sand Island is painted red, and will show a red light. Its range with the outer beacon is the limit of the channel along the west bank northerly from Sand Island.

At Mobile Point, the seaward beacon is painted red, and will show a red light. This, in ranging with the inner one, leads up along the edge of the "East Bank," northerly from the outer bar.

The inner beacon at Mobile Point is white, and will show a white light, and when in range with the Mobile Point Lighthouse, leads to the upper striped buoy, and through the channel at the west end of the "Middle-ground."

A screw pile beacon is under construction, intended to mark the shoal at "Revenue Point," near the outer bar.

A black spar buoy has been placed on the south point of "South-east Pelican Shoal," in 20 feet water, the eastern woods on Dauphin Island, just on with the east end of Pelican Island.

The buoy marks the entrance to the "Middle Channel," that between Pelican and Dauphin Islands being closed. From the buoy the course in, over the bar, is N.E. $\frac{1}{4}$ E.

FROM THE
 of NOVEMBER 5, 1854.

Admiralty, November 5, 1854.

THE following Despatches from Vice-Admiral Dundas have this day been received at the Admiralty :—

No. 523.

Britannia off the Katscha,
October 13, 1854.

IR,

1. I Beg you will acquaint the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that the Allied Armies are employed in erecting batteries to the south of Sebastopol, but I hear are much retarded by the rocky nature of the ground ; the Russian fire of shot and shell by day and night has produced little or no effect. The Naval and Marine battalions are healthy, and there is less sickness in the Army.

2. Sir Edmund Lyons, in the Agamemnon, with the Diamond, and a squadron of steamers, is at Balaklava, assisting the troops. A French squadron, under Vice-Admiral Bruat, is anchored between the lighthouse and the harbour, in communication with the left of the French Army. A division of steam-vessels watches the mouth of the port constantly, where four or five Russian steam-vessels always have their steam up, and the large sailing vessels are with Admiral Hamelin and myself anchored off the Katscha River, the weather hitherto having permitted our remaining in those positions.

3. The Sidon and Inflexible, with Cacique and Caton, are still in Odessa Bay, to prevent any communication by sea with the Crimea, and have sent a transport to them with coals and fresh provisions, which I have drawn from Sinope.

4. On the 11th, an Austrian vessel, laden with hay for the Commissariat, got within range of the batteries, and was deserted by her crew at the second shot; she ran on shore about 1500 yards south of the harbour mouth, and was got off the evening and towed to Balaklava. I enclose the report of Captain Jones, of the Sampson, who, with Captain Stewart, of the Firebrand, and Mr. Boxer, Second Master in charge of the Beagle, assisted by the French launches, of the inshore squadron, got the Austrian to sea from under the batteries in a very successful and creditable manner. The Firebrand has four shots in her hull but fortunately no casualties.

5. I learnt from Captain King, of the Leander, of the approach to Eupatoria of a large Russian force near the town. I have sent the Firebrand and Vesuvius to assist in the defence, should it be attacked, and shall send two other vessels to-day.

6. The French and Turkish troops sent for from Varna and Constantinople by the Simoon, Vulcan, Cyclops, and our transports, are hourly expected; they have been kept back and detained by the late strong north-east gales.

I have &c.,

(Signed) J. W. D. DUNDAS
Vice-Admiral.

To the Secretary of the Admiralty.

No. 527.

SIR,

Britannia, off the Katscha,October 18, 1854.

1. I beg you will acquaint the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that the siege batteries of the Allied Armies opened fire upon the Russian works south of Sebastopol about half past 6 o'clock yesterday morning, with great effect, and small loss.

2. In consequence of the most urgent request of Lord Raglan and General Canrobert, it was agreed by the Admirals of the Allied Fleets that the whole of the ships should assist the land attack by engaging the sea batteries north and south of the harbour, on a line across the port, as shown in the accompanying plan, but various circumstances rendered a change in the position of the ships necessary and unavoidable.

3. The Agamemnon, Sanspareil, Sampson, Tribune, Terrible, Sphinx, and Lynx, and Albion, London, and Arethusa, towed by the Firebrand, Niger, and Triton, engaged Fort Constantine and the batteries to the northward; while the Queen, Britannia, Trafalgar, Vengeance, Rodney, Bellephophon, with Vesuvius, Furious, Retribution, Highflyer, Spitfire, Spiteful, and Cyclops, lashed on the port side of the several ships, gradually took up their positions, as nearly as possible as marked on the plan.

4. The action lasted from about half-past one to half-past six, P.M., when being quite dark, the ships hauled off.

5. The loss sustained by the Russians, and the damage done to Fort Constantine and Batteries cannot, of course, as yet be correctly ascertained.

6. An action of this duration against such formidable and well armed works, could not be maintained without serious injury, and I have to regret the loss of 44 killed and 266 wounded, as detailed in the accompanying lists. The ships, masts, yards, and rigging are more or less damaged, principally by shells and hot shot. The Albion has suffered much in hull and masts, the Rodney in her masts, she having tailed on the reef, from which she was got off by the great exertions of Commander Kynaston, of the Spiteful, whose crew and vessel were necessarily exposed in performing this service; but with the exception of the Albion and Arethusa, which ships I send to Constantinople to be repaired, I hope to be able to make my squadron serviceable in twenty-four hours. Foreseeing from the nature of the attack that we should be likely to lose spars, I left the spare topmasts and yards on board Her Majesty's Ship Vulcan at this anchorage, where I had placed her with all the sick and prisoners.

7. I have now the pleasure of recording my very great satisfaction with the ability and zeal displayed by Rear Admirals Sir Edmund Lyons and the Honourable Montagu Stopford, and all the captains under my command, as well as my sincere thanks to them, and to the officers, seamen, and marines employed, for their unremitting exertions and the rapidity of their fire, in the absence of a large number of the crews of each ship, who were landed to assist in working the siege batteries, &c., on shore, and to this circumstance I attribute the small loss of killed and wounded.

8. The gallant and skilful conduct of our French allies in this action was witnessed by me with admiration, and I hear with regret that they have also suffered considerable loss.

9. I beg to express my gratitude at the manner in which Ahmed Pasha, the Turkish Admiral, did his duty.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) J. W. D. DUNDAS,
Vice-Admiral.

The Secretary of the Admiralty,

FROM THE
of NOVEMBER 7, 1854.

Portman-Square, Midnight,
November 6, 1854.

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle has this evening received a Despatch, of which the following is a copy, addressed to his Grace by General Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

Before Sebastopol, October 23, 1854.

MY LORD DUKE,

The operations of the siege have been carried on unremittingly since I addressed your Grace on the 18th instant.*

On that afternoon, the French batteries not having been able to re-open, the enemy directed their guns almost exclusively on the British entrenchments, and maintained a very heavy fire upon them till the day closed, with less damage, I am happy to say, to the works, and with fewer casualties than might have been anticipated.

On the following morning, shortly after daylight, General Canrobert not only resumed his fire from the batteries which had been injured, but materially added to the weight of his attack by the fire of batteries which he had caused to be constructed the previous day; and these have continued ever since; and he has had it in his power to push his approaches forward, and like the English, materially to injure the defences of the place; but these are as yet far from being subdued, neither is a serious diminution of their fire perceivable.

* This despatch has not been received.

Our fire has also been constant and effective; but the enemy having at their disposal large bodies of men, and the resources of the fleet and arsenal at their command, have been enabled by unceasing exertion to repair their redoubts to a certain extent, and to replace many of the guns that have been destroyed in a very short space of time; and to resume their fire from works which we had succeeded in silencing.

This facility of repairing and re-arming the defences naturally renders the progress of the assailants slower than could be wished; and I have it not in my power to inform your Grace, with anything like certainty, when it may be expected that ulterior measures may be undertaken.

I have the honour to transmit to your Grace the Return of killed and wounded between the 18th and 20th instant, inclusive.

In my last I announced to your Grace the death which had just been reported to me of that deeply lamented officer the Honourable Colonel Hood of the Grenadier Guards. No other military officer has since fallen; but Major Prince Edward of Saxe Weimar was slightly wounded on the 19th. His Serene Highness insisted, however, upon remaining in the trenches until the detachment to which he was attached was relieved at the usual hour, and he has now resumed his duty.

Captain Lord Dunkellin of the Coldstream Guards, was unfortunately taken prisoner yesterday morning before daylight, in front of the trenches.

The naval batteries have continued their exertions without intermission, and I regret to have to report the death of two gallant officers of the Royal Navy; the Honourable Lieutenant Ruthven who has died of his wounds, and Lieutenant Greathed of Her Majesty's ship Britannia. Both are universally regretted. The latter received a mortal wound while laying a gun, after having, to use the language of Brigadier-General Eyre, who was then in charge of the trenches, "performed his duty in the batteries in a manner that excited the admiration of all."

A considerable body of Russians appeared two days ago in the vicinity of Balaklava, but they have since withdrawn, and are no longer to be seen in our front.

I have reason to believe that Prince Menschikoff is not in Sebastopol. He is stated to have placed himself with the main body of the army in the field, which is represented to be stationed in the plains south of Bacshi S-rai.

Admiral Cernilof, the chief of the staff, and temporarily in command of Sebastopol, is reported to have died of his wounds the day before yesterday.

I have, &c.,
RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,
&c. &c. &c.

FROM THE SUPPLEMENT
of NOVEMBER 7, 1854.

Admiralty, Midnight, November 6, 1854.

A DESPATCH, of which the following is a copy, has this night been received at the Admiralty :

No. 534.

Britannia, off the Katscha,
SIR, 23rd October, 1854.

I beg to acquaint you, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that since my letter of the 18th instant, the siege batteries have continued their fire against the Russian works, which appear to have suffered much, and the fire slackened, although it is still considerable.

2. The Naval Brigade are doing good service, and, up to the 20th, had a loss of 12 killed and 53 wounded, as per annexed list. By the desire of Lord Raglan, I have reinforced them by 410 officers and seamen, and placed Lord John Hay in the Wasp, under the orders of Captain Lushington.

3. Captain Brock, at Eupatoria, supported by the Leander and Megæra, has maintained his position well, although threatened and attacked by heavy bodies of Cavalry, with guns; we have drawn large supplies from there, but as the Russians are destroying all the villages, I fear they will in future become very scanty and uncertain.

4. Since the action of the 17th, the enemy have been working incessantly in repairing their batteries, and in constructing new works on the north side of the harbour, commanding the approaches by sea and land.

5. I have sent the Albion and Arethusa to Constantinople to repair; the other ships of the fleet have fished their masts, &c., and are ready for service.

6. The Lynx, Sphinx, Stromboli, and Viper, have arrived.

7. The weather hitherto has been very favourable, and the crews of the ships are generally healthy.

8. The English and French Steam Division still continue in the Bay of Odessa, actively employed in preventing communication with the Crimea.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) J. W. D. DUNDAS,
Vice-Admiral.

At the Court at Windsor, the 18th day of October, 1854,

PRESENT.

The QUEEN's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas by an Act passed in the session of Parliament holden in the seventh and eighth years of Her Majesty, it was enacted that when and as often as it should seem expedient to the justices of any county, that such county should be divided into two or more districts for the purpose of the said Act, or that any alteration should be made of any division theretofore made under the said Act, it should be lawful for the said justices, in general or quarter sessions assembled, to resolve that a petition should be presented to Her Majesty, praying that such division or alteration be made, and thereupon to adjourn the further consideration of such petition until notice thereof should be given to the coroner or coroners of such county as hereinafter provided. And that the clerk of the peace should give notice of any such resolution to every coroner of such county, and of the time when the petition will be taken by the said justices into consideration, and the justices should confer with every such coroner who should attend the meeting of the justices for that purpose touching such petition, having due regard to the size and nature of each proposed district, the number of the inhabitants, the nature of their employment, and such other circumstances as should appear to the justices fit to be considered in carrying into execution the provisions of this Act, and such petition, with a description of the several proposed districts, and of the boundaries thereof, with the reasons upon which the petition is founded, should be certified to Her Majesty under the hands and seals of two or more of the justices present, when such petition should be agreed to, and the clerk of the peace for such county should forthwith give or send a true copy of such petitions certified under his hand to every coroner of such county.

And whereas the justices of the county of Cornwall in quarter sessions assembled did on the fourth day of April, A.D., one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four, resolve that a petition should be presented to Her Majesty, praying that the said county shall be divided into five districts for the purposes of the aforesaid Act ; thereupon the consideration of the said petition was adjourned according to the provisions of the said Act, and due notice of the said resolution and of the time when the same would be taken into consideration was duly given to the existing coroners for the said county, and the said petition was afterwards duly taken into consideration and agreed to by the justices of the said county in pursuance of the said Act, and the clerk of the peace for the said county did forthwith, on the said petition being agreed to, give a true copy thereof, certified under his hand, to the existing coroners for the said county. And whereas the said petition has been certified to Her Majesty under the hands and seals of two or more of the justices present when the same was agreed to, and the prayer thereof is that the said county may be divided into the five districts hereinafter described for the purposes of the said Act, and that the courts for the election of coroners shall be holden at the places hereafter in that behalf mentioned.

And whereas it has seemed fit for Her Majesty by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, after taking the said petition into consideration, to order that the said county shall be divided into the said five districts for the purposes of the said Act. Now it is hereby ordered that the county of Cornwall shall be divided into five districts for the purposes of the said Act, and that the districts shall be called the Launceston District,

Bodmin District,

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle has this day received a Despatch of which the following is a copy, addressed to His Grace by General the Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

5 K 2

(This Despatch was lost in its passage through France, and was received at the above hour by His Grace, to whom it was transmitted by His Excellency the Lord Cowley, G.C.B.)

Before Sebastopol, October 18, 1854.

MY LORD DUKE,

It was arranged between General Canrobert and myself, that the batteries of the two armies should open immediately after daylight on the morning of the 17th, and we invited Admiral Dundas and Admiral Hamelin to attack the enemy's works at the mouth of the harbour with the combined fleets, as nearly simultaneously as circumstances might permit.

Accordingly, upon a signal being given from the centre of the French lines, the batteries of the two armies commenced their fire about a quarter before seven yesterday morning.

On this occasion we employed about 60 guns of different calibres, the lightest being 24-pounders.

It may here be proper to observe that the character of the position which the enemy occupy on the south side of Sebastopol is not that of a fortress, but rather of an army in an entrenched camp on very strong ground, where an apparently unlimited number of heavy guns, amply provided with gunners and ammunition, are mounted.

The guns having opened as above stated, a continuous and well directed fire was carried on from the works of the two armies until about ten o'clock A.M., when, unfortunately, a magazine in the midst of one of the French batteries exploded and occasioned considerable damage to the works, and

I fear many casualties, and almost paralyzed the efforts of the French Artillery for the day.

The British batteries, however, manned by sailors from the fleet, under the command of Captain Lushington and Captain Peel, and by the Royal Artillery, under the superintendence of Lieutenant-Colonel Gambier, kept up their fire with unremitting energy throughout the day to my own and the general satisfaction, as well as to the admiration of the French Army, who were witnesses of their gallant and persevering exertions, materially injuring the enemy's works, and silencing the heavy guns on the top of the loop-holed tower, to which I adverted in my despatch of the 13th instant, and many of the guns at its base, and causing an extensive explosion in the rear of a strong redoubt in our immediate front, the enemy notwithstanding answered to the last from a number of guns along their more extended line.

The fire was resumed this morning at daylight by the British sailors and artillery, and responded to, though in a somewhat less degree, by the Russians; but the French troops, being occupied in the repair of their batteries, and in the formation of others, have not contributed to the renewal of the attack, except from a work on their extreme left; they expect, however, to be able to do so to-morrow morning.

I beg to lay before your Grace a return of the loss sustained by the Royal Navy, and the Army under my command, between the 13th and the 17th instant, and to this I am deeply concerned to add that of Colonel the Honourable Francis Hood, commanding the 3rd Battalion Grenadier Guards, an excellent officer, whose death in the trenches this morning has just been reported to me.

The English, French, and Turkish fleets moved towards the mouth of the harbour about noon, and kept up a heavy fire upon the enemy's forts for several hours.

I am not fully acquainted with the details of the attack, or its result, but I understand that Rear-Admiral Sir Edmund Lyons, with the Agamemnon and Sanspareil, assisted occasionally by the London, Queen, and Albion, gallantly approached to within six hundred yards of Fort Constantine, the great work at the northern entrance, where he maintained himself till late in the afternoon, and succeeded in exploding a magazine, and causing a considerable injury to the face of the fort.

Since I wrote to your Grace on the 18th, six battalions of Turkish infantry and 300 Turkish artillery have been added to the force in front of Balaklava.

These troops have been sent from Constantinople, and placed under my command by the government of the Porte, and I feel greatly indebted to Her Majesty's ambassador, Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe, for the ability and energy with which he brought under the notice of the Sultan the importance I attached to an immediate reinforcement of the Imperial troops,

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle has this day received two Despatches, with Enclosures, of which the following are copies, addressed to His Grace by General the Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

No. 85.

Before Sevastopol,

MY LORD DUKE,

October 28, 1854.

I have the honour to acquaint your Grace that the Enemy attacked the position in front of Balaklava at an early hour on the morning of the 25th instant.

The low range of heights that runs across the plain at the bottom of which the town is placed was protected by four small redoubts hastily constructed. Three of these had guns in them, and on a higher hill, in front of the village of Camara in advance of our right flank, was established a work of somewhat more importance.

These several redoubts were garrisoned by Turkish troops, no other force being at my disposal for their occupation.

The 93rd Highlanders was the only British Regiment in the plain, with the exception of a part of a battalion of detachments composed of weakly men, and a battery of Artillery belonging to the Third Division; and on the heights behind our right were placed the Marines, obliging having landed from the Fleet by Vice-Admiral Dundas. All these, including the Turkish troops, were under the immediate orders of Major-General Sir Colin Campbell, whom I had taken from the First Division with the 93rd.

As soon as I was apprised of this movement on the part of the Enemy, I felt compelled to withdraw from before Sevastopol, the First and Fourth Divisions commanded by Lieutenant-Generals His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge and the Honourable Sir George Cathcart, and bring them down into the plain; and General Canrobert subsequently reinforced these troops with the First Division of French Infantry and the Chasseurs d'Afrique.

The Enemy commenced their operation by attacking the work on our side of the village of Camara, and, after very little resistance, carried it.

They likewise got possession of the three others in contiguity to it, being opposed only in one, and that but for a very short space of time.

The farthest of the three they did not retain, but the immediate abandonment of the others enabled them to take possession of the guns in them, amounting in the whole to seven. Those in the three lesser forts were spiked by the one English artilleryman who was in each.

The Russian cavalry at once advanced, supported by artillery, in very great strength. One portion of them assailed the front and right flank of the 93rd, and were instantly driven back by the vigorous and steady fire of that distinguished regiment, under Lieutenant-Colonel Ainslie.

The other and larger mass turned towards Her Majesty's heavy cavalry, and afforded Brigadier-General Scarlett, under the guidance of Lieutenant-General the Earl of Lucan, the opportunity of inflicting upon them a most signal defeat. The ground was very unfavourable for the attack of our Dragoons, but no obstacle was sufficient to check their advance, and they charged into the Russian column, which soon sought safety in flight, although far superior in numbers.

The charge of this brigade was one of the most successful I ever witnessed, was never for a moment doubtful, and is in the highest degree creditable to Brigadier-General Scarlett and the officers and men engaged in it.

As the enemy withdrew from the ground which they had momentarily occupied, I directed the cavalry, supported by the Fourth Division, under Lieutenant-General Sir George Cathcart, to move forward, and take advantage of any opportunity to regain the heights; and, not having been able to accomplish this immediately, and it appearing that an attempt was making to remove the captured guns, the Earl of Lucan was desired to advance rapidly, follow the enemy in their retreat, and try to prevent them from effecting their objects.

From some misconception of the instruction to advance, the Lieutenant-General considered that he was bound to attack at all hazards, and he accordingly ordered Major-General the Earl of Cardigan to move forward with the Light Brigade.

This order was obeyed in the most spirited and gallant manner. Lord Cardigan charged with the utmost vigour; attacked a battery which was firing upon the advancing squadrons; and, having passed beyond it, engaged the Russian Cavalry in its rear; but there his troops were assailed by artillery and infantry, as well as cavalry, and necessarily retired, after having committed much havoc upon the enemy.

They effected this movement without haste or confusion; but the loss they have sustained has I deeply lament, been very severe in officers, men, and horses, only counterbalanced by the brilliancy of the attack, and the gallantry, order, and discipline which distinguished it, forming a striking contrast to the conduct of the enemy's cavalry, which had previously been engaged with the heavy brigade.

I have the honour to inclose copies of Sir Colin Campbell's and the Earl of Lucan's reports.

I beg to draw your Grace's attention to the terms in which Sir Colin Campbell speaks of Lieutenant-Colonel Ainslie, of the 93rd, and Captain Barker, of the Royal Artillery; and also to the praise bestowed by the Earl of Lucan on Major-General the Earl of Cardigan, and Brigadier-General Scarlett, which they most fully deserve.

The Earl of Lucan not having sent me the names of the other Officers who distinguished themselves, I propose to forward them by the next opportunity.

The enemy made no further movement in advance, and at the close of the day the brigade of Guards of the 1st Division, and the 4th Division returned to their original encampment, as did the French troops, with the exception of one brigade of the 1st Division, which General Canrobert was so good as to leave in support of Sir Colin Campbell.

The remaining regiments of the Highland Brigade also remained in the valley.

The 4th Division had advanced close to the heights, and Sir George Cathcart caused one of the redoubts to be reoccupied by the 'Turks, affording them his support, and he availed himself of the opportunity to assist with his riflemen in silencing two of the enemy's guns.

The means of defending the extensive position which had been occupied by the Turkish troops in the morning having proved wholly inadequate, I deemed it necessary, in concurrence with General Canrobert, to withdraw from the lower range of heights, and to concentrate our force, which will be increased by a considerable body of seamen, to be landed from the ships under the authority of Admiral Dundas, immediately in front of the narrow valley leading into Balaklava, and upon the precipitous heights on our right, thus affording a narrower line of defence.

RAGLAN.

Balaklava,October 27th, 1854.

MY LORD,

I have the honour to report that the Cavalry Division under my command was seriously engaged with the enemy on the 25th instant, during the greater part of which day it was under a heavy fire ; that it made a most triumphant charge against a very superior number of the enemy's cavalry, and an attack upon batteries which for daring and gallantry could not be exceeded. The loss, however, in officers, men, and horses, has been most severe.

From half-past six in the morning, when the Horse Artillery first opened fire, till the enemy had possessed itself of all the different forts, the cavalry, constantly changing their positions, continued giving all the support they could to the Turkish troops, though much exposed to the fire of heavy guns and riflemen, when they took post on the left of the second line of redoubts, by an order from your lordship.

The Heavy Brigade had soon to return to the support of the troops defending Balaklava, and was fortunate enough in being at hand when a large force of Russian cavalry was descending the hill. I immediately ordered Brigadier-General Scarlett to attack with the Scots Greys and Enniskillen Dragoons, and had his attack supported in second line by the Fifth Dragoon Guards, and by a flank attack of the Fourth Dragoon Guards.

Under every disadvantage of ground, these eight small squadrons succeeded in defeating and dispersing a body of cavalry estimated at three times their number and more.

The Heavy Brigade having now joined the Light Brigade, the division took up a position with a view of supporting an attack upon the heights, when being instructed to make a rapid advance to our front, to prevent the enemy carrying the guns lost by the Turkish troops in the morning, I ordered the Light Brigade to advance in two lines, and supported them with the Heavy Brigade. This attack of the Light Cavalry was very brilliant and daring ; exposed to a fire from heavy batteries on their front and two flanks, they advanced unchecked until they reached the batteries of the enemy, and cleared them of their gunners, and only retired when they found themselves engaged with a very superior force of cavalry in the rear. Major-General the Earl of Cardigan led this attack in the most gallant and intrepid manner ; and his lordship has expressed himself to me as admiring in the highest degree the courage and zeal of every officer, non-commissioned officer, and man that assisted.

The Heavy Brigade advanced to the support of the attack under a very galling fire from the batteries and infantry in a redoubt, and acted with most perfect steadiness, and in a manner to deserve praise.

The losses, my lord, it grieves me to state, have been very great indeed, and, I fear, will be much felt by your Lordship.

I cannot too strongly recommend to your Lordship the two General Officers commanding the brigades, all the officers in command of regiments, also the Divisional and Brigade Staffs ; indeed, the conduct of every individual, of every rank, I hold to be deserving of my entire praise, and, I am, of your Lordship's approbation.

The conduct of the Royal Horse Artillery, first under the command of Captain Maude, and, after that officer was severely wounded, of Captain Shakespear, was most meritorious and praiseworthy. I received from those officers every possible assistance during the time they respectively commanded.

I have, &c.

LUCAN,

Lieutenant-General Commanding
Cavalry Division.

His Excellency the Commander of the Forces,

Camp Battery No. 4, Balaklava,
October 27, 1854.

SIR,

I have the honour to inform you that on the morning of the 25th instant, about 7 o'clock, the Russian force which has been, as I already reported for some time amongst the hills on our right front, debouched into the open ground in front of the redoubts Nos. 1, 2 and 3, which were occupied by Turkish Infantry and Artillery, and armed with 7 12-pounders (iron). The enemy's force consisted of 18 or 19 battalions of infantry, from 30 to 40 guns and a large body of cavalry. The attack was made against No. 1 redoubt by a cloud of skirmishers supported by 8 battalions of infantry and 16 guns. The Turkish troops in No. 1, persisted as long as they could and then retired, and they suffered considerable loss in their retreat. This attack was followed by the successive abandonment of Nos. 2, 3 and 4 redoubts by the Turks, as well as of the other posts held by them in our front. The guns however in Nos. 2, 3 and 4 were spiked. The garrisons of these redoubts retired, and some of them formed on the right, and some on the left flank of the 98rd Highlanders, which was posted in front of No. 4 battery and the village of Katichioi. When the enemy had taken possession of these redoubts, their artillery advanced with a large mass of cavalry, and their guns ranged to the 93rd Highlanders, which with 100 invalids under Lieut.-Col. Daveney in support, occupied very insufficiently from the smallness of their numbers, the slightly rising ground in front of No. 4 battery. As I found that round shot and shell began to cause some casualties among the 93rd Highlanders and the Turkish battalions on their right and left flank, I made them retire a few paces behind the crest of the hill. During this period our batteries on the hills, manned by the Royal Marine Artillery and the Royal Marines, made most excellent practice on the enemy's cavalry, which came over the hill ground in front. One body of them amounting to about 400 men, turned to their left, separating themselves from those who attacked Lord Lucan's Division, and charged the 93rd Highlanders, who immediately advanced to the crest of the hill and opened their fire, which forced the Russian cavalry to give way and turn to their left, after which they made an attempt to turn the right flank of the 93rd, having observed the flight of the Turks who were placed there, upon which the Grenadiers of the 93rd, under Captain Ross, were wheeled up to their right and fired on the enemy, which manœuvre completely discomfited them.

During the rest of the day the troops under my command received no further molestation from the Russians. I beg to call Lord Raglan's attention to the gallantry and eagerness of the 93rd Highlanders under Lieut.-Col. Ainslie, of which probably his Lordship was an eye-witness ; as well as the admirable conduct of Captain Barker, and the officers of the Field Battery under his orders, who made most excellent practice against the Russian cavalry and artillery while within range.

I have, &c.,

To Brigadier-General Estcourt, Adjutant-General.

2nd Division, Heights of the Tchernaya

MY LORD, October 27, 1854.

Yesterday the enemy attacked this division with several columns of infantry supported by artillery. Their cavalry did not come to the front. Their masses, covered by large bodies of skirmishers, advanced with much apparent confidence. The division immediately formed line in advance of our camp, the left under Major-General Pennefather, the right under Brigadier-General Adams. Lieutenant-Colonel Fitzmayer and the Captain of batteries (Turner and Yates) promptly posted their guns and opened fire upon the enemy.

Immediately on the cannonade being heard, the Duke of Cambridge brought up to our support the brigade of Guards under Major-General Ben tinck, with a battery under Lieutenant-Colonel Dacres. His Royal Highness took post in advance of our right to secure that flank, and rendered me throughout the most effective and important assistance. General Bosquet, with similar promptitude and from a greater distance, approached our position with five French battalions. Sir G. Cathcart hastened to us with a regiment of Rifles, and Sir G. Brown pushed forward two guns in co-operation by our left.

The enemy came on at first rapidly, assisted by their guns on the Mound-hill. Our piquets then chiefly of the 49th and 30th regiments, resisted them with very remarkable determination and firmness. Lieutenant Conolly of the 49th greatly distinguished himself, as did Captain Bayley of the 30th, and Captain Atcherley, all of whom, I regret to say, were severely wounded. Serjeant Sullivan also displayed at this point great bravery.

In the mean time, our 18 guns in position, including those of the First Division, were served with the utmost energy. In half an hour they forced the enemy's artillery to abandon the field. Our batteries were then directed with equal accuracy and vigour upon the enemy's columns, which exposed also to the close fire of our advanced infantry) soon fell into complete disorder and flight. They were then literally chased by the 10th and 95th regiments over the ridges and down towards the head of the bay. So eager was the pursuit that it was with difficulty Major-General Pennefather eventually effected the recall of our men. These regiments and the piquets were led gallantly by Major Mauleverer, Major Champion, Major Eman, and Major Hume. They were similarly pursued further towards our right, by four companies of the 41st, led gallantly by Lieutenant-Colonel the Honourable P. Herbert, A.Q.M.G. The 47th also contributed. The 55th were held in reserve.

Above 80 prisoners fell into our hands, and about 130 of the enemy's dead were left within or near our position. It is computed that their total loss could scarcely be less than 600.

Our loss, I am sorry to say, has been above 80, of whom 12 killed, 5 officers wounded. I am happy to say, hopes are entertained that Lieutenant Conolly will recover, but his wound is dangerous.

I will have the honour of transmitting to your Lordship a list of officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates, whose conduct attracted special notice. That of the piquets excited general admiration.

To Major-General Pennefather and Brigadier-General Adams I was, as usual, greatly indebted. To Lieutenant-Colonel Dacres, Lieutenant-Colonel Fitzmayer, Captains Turner, Yates, Woodham and Hemlin, and the whole of the Royal Artillery we are under the greatest obligation.

Lieutenant-Colonel Herbert, A.Q.M.G., rendered the division, as he always does, highly distinguished and energetic services. Lieutenant-Colonel Wilbraham, A.A.G., while serving most actively, I regret to say, had a very severe fall from his horse. I beg leave also to recommend to your Lordship's favourable consideration, the excellent services of Captains Glasbrook and Thompson, of the Quartermaster-General's department, the Brigade-Majors Captains Armstrong and Thackwell, and my personal staff, Captain Allix, Gubbins, and the Hon. W. Boyle.

I have, &c.,

DE LACY EVANS,

Lieutenant-General

To General the Right Hon. Lord Raglan, G.C.B.
&c. &c. &c.

No. 86.

MY LORD DUKE,

Before Sevastopol,

October 28, 1854.

I have nothing particular to report to your Grace respecting the operations of the siege, since I wrote to you on the 23rd instant. The fire has been somewhat less constant, and our casualties have been fewer, though I regret to say that Captain Childers, a very promising officer of the Royal Artillery, was killed on the evening of the 23rd, and I have just heard that Major Dalton of the 49th, of whom Lieutenant-General Sir De Lacy Evans entertained a very high opinion, was killed in the trenches last night.

The enemy moved out of Sevastopol on the 26th with a large force of infantry, cavalry, and artillery, amounting, it is said, to 6000 or 7000 men, and attacked the left of the 2nd Division, commanded by Lieutenant-General Sir De Lacy Evans, who speedily and energetically repulsed them, assisted by one of the batteries of the 1st Division, and some guns of the Light Division, and supported by a brigade of Guards and by several regiments of the 4th Division, and in rear by the French Division commanded by General Bosquet, who was most eager in his desire to give him every aid.

I have the honour to transmit a copy of Sir De Lacy Evans's report, which I am sure your Grace will read with the highest satisfaction, and I beg to recommend the officers whom he particularly mentions to your protection.

Captain Bayley of the 30th, and Captain Atcherley of the same Regiment, and Lieutenant Conolly of the 49th, all of whom are severely wounded, appear to have greatly distinguished themselves.

I cannot speak in too high terms of the manner in which Lieutenant-General Sir De Lacy Evans met this very serious attack. I had not the good fortune to witness it myself, being occupied in front of Balaklava at the time it commenced, and having only reached his position as the affair ceased, but I am certain I speak the sentiments of all who witnessed the operation, in saying that nothing could have been better managed, and that the greatest credit is due to the Lieutenant-General, whose services and conduct I have before had to bring under your Grace's notice.

I enclose the return of the losses the army has sustained since the 22nd.

I have, &c.,
RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,
&c. &c. &c.

FROM THE
of NOVEMBER 16, 1854.

Portman-Square, November 16, 1854.
12.30 a.m.

THE Duke of Newcastle has to-night received a Telegraphic Despatch, of which the following is a translation, from General Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

The Despatch was delayed between Bucharest and Vienna by an interruption of the telegraph from injuries received during a violent storm.

Translation of a Telegraphic Despatch received by the Duke of Newcastle, on 16th November, 12.30 a.m., from Lord Raglan.

November 6, 1854.

The Enemy, with immense forces, attacked yesterday, in the dawn of morning, the right of the English position before Sevastopol, which was defended by the Second Division and the Brigade of Guards of the First Light Division, the Fourth Division, and part of the third, and subsequently by the division of General Bosquet and other corps of the French Army, which by their gallant conduct contributed essentially to the decided success of the day. General Canrobert immediately came to the spot, and gave me the support of his assistance and of his excellent counsel. The battle was extremely obstinate, and it was not till past noon that the enemy was definitively repulsed and forced to retreat, leaving the field of battle covered with his dead and several hundreds of prisoners. The number of the enemy much exceeded that which was opposed to us at Alma, and the losses of the Russians have been enormous. Our losses have also been very great. General Sir George Brown, Major-General Bentinck, Brigadier-Generals Adams, Buller, and Torrens have been wounded. They are all doing well.

The conduct of the troops in the face of an enemy so superior in numbers has been excellent.

(Signed) RAGLAN.

Received at Bucharest, Friday, the 10th November, at 4½ p.m., and forwarded to Kronstadt at 6 p.m.

THE BRITISH AGENT.

FROM THE SUPPLEMENT
LONDON GAZETTE EXTRAORDINARY
of NOVEMBER 16, 1854.

War Department, November 17, 1854, 12½ o'clock Afternoon.

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle has this day received three Despatches and Enclosures, of which the following are copies, addressed to his Grace by General the Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

No. 93.

Before Sebastopol, October 31, 1854.

MY LORD DUKE,

Adverting to that part of your Grace's Despatch of the 10th instant, No. 116, in which it is stated that Her Majesty will be most anxious to receive such further accounts from me as may tend to relieve the affectionate anxiety of the friends of the wounded, I have the honour to acquaint your Grace that the Inspector-General of Hospitals has reported, from personal observation, that the majority of the wounded are making satisfactory progress, although there is too much reason to apprehend that among such a number of severe and dangerous injuries, a certain proportion of casualties must occur.

I have, &c..

RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,

No. 94.

MY LORD DUKE,

Before Sebastopol,October 31, 1855

When I wrote to your Grace on the 28th instant, I was not in possession of the names of the officers of the Cavalry Division who had distinguished themselves in the action of the 25th.

I have now the honour to inclose a letter from Lieut.-General the Earl of Lucan, containing the list of those whose services entitle them to be specially mentioned, and I beg leave to recommend them to your Grace's notice.

In the Despatch to which I above refer, I have the honour to draw your Grace's attention to the conduct of Major-General the Earl of Cardigan and the Honourable Brigadier-General Scarlett.

I omitted in my Despatch of the 28th September, to state, that when in the battle of the Alma, Lieutenant-Colonel Webber Smith was obliged, in consequence of being severely wounded to leave the field, Major Champion assumed the command of the 95th, which your Grace will recollect was one of the regiments that suffered the most ; and he gained great credit, by the way in which he conducted the command.

I am glad of the opportunity to repair the omission.

I stated to your Grace on the 28th instant that Major Dalton, of the 49th, had been killed in the trenches ; this was an error, the officer whose loss the service has to deplore is Major Powell, of the same regiment. I deeply regret that the mistake should have occurred.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,

Major-General the Earl of Cardigan, Commanding Light Cavalry Brigade; Brigadier-General Scarlett, Commanding Heavy Brigade; Colonel Lord George Paget, Commanding 4th Light Dragoons; Lieutenant-Colonel Shewell, Commanding 8th Hussars; Lieutenant-Colonel Hodge, Commanding 4th Dragoon Guards; Lieutenant-Colonel Griffiths, Commanding 2nd Scots Greys; Lieutenant-Colonel Yorke, Commanding 1st Royal Dragoons; Lieutenant-Colonel White, Commanding 6th Enniskilling Dragoons; Lieutenant-Colonel Douglas, Commanding 11th Hussars; Captain Jenyns, Commanding 13th Light Dragoons; Captain Morris, Commanding 17th Lancers; Captain Burton, Commanding 5th Dragoon Guards; Captain Maude, Royal Horse Artillery; Colonel Lord William Paulet, Assistant Adjutant-General, Cavalry Division; Lieutenant-Colonel Mayow, Brigade Major, Light Cavalry Brigade; Major McMahon, Assistant Quartermaster-General, Cavalry Division; Captain Conolly, Brigade Major, Heavy Brigade; Captain B. Walker, 7th Dragoon Guards, my 1st Aide-de-Camp; Captain Fellowes, 12th Lancers,

Deputy-Assistant Quartermaster-General, Cavalry Division.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) LUCAN,
Lieutenant-General Commanding
Cavalry Division.

The Military Secretary,

No. 95.

Before Sebastopol,

MY LORD DUKE,

November 3, 1854

Since I wrote to your Grace, on the 28th ultimo, the enemy have considerably increased their force in the Valley of the Tschernaya, both in artillery, cavalry, and infantry, and have extended to their left, not only occupying the village of Camara, but the heights beyond it, and pushing forward pickets and even guns towards our extreme right; and these yesterday fired a few shots, apparently to try the range, which fell somewhat short.

These movements have induced me to place as strong a force as I can dispose of on the precipitous ridge in that direction, in order to prevent any attempt to get round to Balaklava by the sea, and the whole line is strengthened by a breastwork which has been thrown up by the Highland Brigade, the Royal Marines, and the Turkish troops, thus circumscribing that part of the position; while immediately in front of the gorge leading into the town a strong redoubt is in course of being completed, which is to be garrisoned by the 93rd Regiment, and armed with several guns; and on high ground behind, and to the left, is a battery manned by seamen, which terminates the position to be defended by the troops under the command of Major-General Sir Colin Campbell.

Further to the left, and in a more elevated position, is the Brigade of the 1st French Division, commanded by General Vinois, ready to move to the assistance of any of the British Force that may be assailed, and maintaining the connexion between the troops in the valley and those on the ridge on which the main armies are posted.

The harbour of Balaklava is under the charge of Captain Dacres of the Sanspareil, and Rear-Admiral Sir Edmund Lyons is in the roadstead outside, and is in daily communication with me.

Thus every possible step has been taken to secure this important point, but I will not conceal from your Grace that I should be more satisfied if I could have occupied the position in considerably greater strength.

With reference to the operations of the combined armies engaged in the attack on Sebastopol, I have the honour to state that there is no material diminution in the enemy's fire, and yesterday morning, two hours before daylight, the cannonade from all parts of the south front was heavy in the extreme, both on the French and British lines, and it occasioned, I deeply regret to say, some loss, but less than might have been expected under the circumstances.

In the meanwhile the French, who had before them the town and real body of the place, have taken advantage of the more favourable ground, and are carrying on approaches systematically on the most salient and commanding part of the enemy's lines; and they have constructed and opened batteries, the precision of the fire from which has most materially damaged the Russian works, although as yet they have not succeeded in silencing their guns.

The weather is still fine, but it has become extremely cold, and there was a severe frost last night.

I beg to submit to your Grace the nominal returns of casualties amongst the non-commissioned officers and rank and file from the 22nd October to 1st November, both days inclusive, and a list of officers killed and wounded between the 27th October and 1st November.

Captain Maude, of the Horse Artillery, an excellent officer, is I am assured doing well.

I likewise enclose the naval return of casualties.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle.

Sixth. Passengers found on board attacked by the cholera, and also those who may be attacked in the Lazarette, shall be immediately removed, with all due care, to the places designated by the Minister in this city, and by the Presidents in the provinces, where they shall be properly attended to, care being taken to prevent, by all possible means, intercourse with the sick, except by those Seventh. The Central Board of Health, and Boards of Health in the provinces, as well as "Providores de Sande," shall, in conformity with instructions from Government, adopt the necessary measures, in order that immediate medical assistance may be rendered to the sick, and that none be wanting for their comfort, as well as to be under observation in the Lazarette.

Eighth. The Central Board of Health shall, under the approval of Government, the necessary instructions to the Provincial Boards, and to the "Providores de Sande," for the due execution of these measures.

The Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Colonisations have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a Despatch from Her Majesty's Consul at Elsinore, including a copy of a Notice to Mariners (a Translation of which is subjoined), issued by the Royal Danish Department at Copenhagen, relative to a Light Ship at the Copperground in the Cattegat.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

A NEW LIGHT SHIP AT THE COPPERGROUND, IN THE CATTEGAT.

Pursuant to preliminary Notices from the Royal Navy Department of the 4th September and the 14th October of this current year, public notice is hereby given, that the three-masted Light Ship therein mentioned now has occupied the place of the temporary Light Ship which, on the 24th September, last year, was stationed at the Copperground, eleven miles S. t. E. from the easternmost part of the mainland of Læsø, and that the same, for the first time, has exhibited its light on Sunday, the 29th October, half an hour after sunset.

This new Floating Light exhibits three flames, one on each mast, whereof the middle one is 40 feet, and the other two 28 feet, elevated above the surface of the water. The apparatus of each flame consists of eight sinumbra lamps, with silver plated parabolical reflectors, placed in a lantern round the mast. The ship has a red ball at the top of each mast, and, like the other Danish Light Ships, its hull painted red on the outside, with a white cross, in which the Danish name of the station, "Kobbergrunden," is exhibited.

The place of the ship is, as previously stated, in lat. N. $57^{\circ} 8' 30''$ and long. E. $11^{\circ} 20' 30''$, $3\frac{1}{2}$ cables' lengths S.E. t. S. from the Southern Vane (called the New Vane) of the Copperground, in 4 fathoms' water.

It has been shewn experimentally that when the view is not confined or intercepted by fog, and the eye elevated 10 feet above the level of the water :—

The top light may be seen at the distance of 8 miles, and the lower lights at the distance of 7 miles ;

When the floating light is seen at an angle of $1\frac{1}{2}$ point from the straight line, fore and aft, two lights will be seen, in a line more or less perpendicular; but when the said angle is greater, all the three lights will be seen; in a telescope the lights may be distinctly seen from the north, the lower lights have become visible above the horizon.

BATTLE OF INKERMEN.

War Department,

November 22, 1854, 9½

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle has day received a Despatch of which the following a copy, addressed to his Grace by Field-Marshal the Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

No. 96.

Before Sebastopol, November 8, 1854.

MY LORD DUKE,

I have the honour to report to your Grace that the army under my command, powerfully aided by the corps of observation of the French Army, under the command of that distinguished officer, General Bosquet, effectually repulsed and defeated a most vigorous and determined attack of the enemy on our position overlooking the ruins of Inkerman, on the morning of the 5th instant.

In my letter to your Grace of the 3rd, I informed you that the enemy had considerably increased their force in the valley of the Tschernaya. The following day this augmentation was still further apparent, and large masses of troops had evidently arrived from the northward, and on two several occasions persons of distinguished rank were observed to have joined the Russian Camp.

I have subsequently learnt that the 4th corps d'armée, conveyed in carriages of the country, and in the lightest possible order, had been brought from Moldavia, and were to be immediately followed by the 3rd corps.

It was therefore to be expected that an extensive movement would not be long deferred.

Accordingly, shortly before daylight on the 5th, strong columns of the enemy came upon the advanced picquets covering the right of the position. These picquets behaved with admirable gallantry, defending the ground foot by foot against the overwhelming numbers of the enemy, until the 2nd Division, under Major-General Pennefather, with its field guns, which had immediately been got under arms, was placed in position.

The Light Division, under Lieutenant-General Sir George Brown, was also brought to the front without loss of time; the 1st Brigade, Major-General Coddington, occupying the slopes to the left towards Sebastopol, and protecting our right battery, and guarding against attack on that side, and the 2nd Brigade, Brigadier-General Buller, forming on the right of the 2nd Division, with the 88th Regiment, Lieutenant-Colonel Jeffreys, thrown in advance.

The Brigade of Guards, under His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge and Major-General Bentinck, proceeded likewise to the front and took up most important ground to the extreme right on the alignment of the 2nd Division, separated from it by a deep and precipitous ravine, and posting its guns with those of the 2nd Division.

The 4th Division, under Lieutenant-General Sir George Cathcart, having been brought from their encampment, advanced to the front and to the left of the attack, the 1st Brigade, under Brigadier-General Goldie, proceeded to the left of the Inkerman road, the 2nd Brigade, under Brigadier-General Torrens, to the right of it, and the 3rd Brigade, to the ridge overhanging the valley of the Tchernaya.

The 3rd Division, under Lieutenant-General Sir Richard England, occupied in part the position vacated by the 4th Division, and supported the Light Division by two regiments under Brigadier-General Sir John Campbell, while Brigadier-General Eyre held the command of the trenches.

The morning was extremely dark with a drizzle and rain, rendering it almost impossible to distinguish anything beyond the flash and smoke of our guns and heavy musketry fire.

It, however, soon became evident that the enemy under cover of a vast cloud of skirmishers supported by dense columns of infantry, advanced numerous batteries, of large calibre, to the high ground to the left and front of the 2nd Division, while powerful columns of infantry attacked with great vigour the Brigade of Guards. Additional batteries of heavy artillery were also placed by the enemy on the slopes to our left, the guns in the field amounting in the whole to 90 pieces, independently however of the ship guns and those in the works of Sebastopol.

Protected by a tremendous fire of shot, shell, and grape, the Russian columns advanced in great force, requiring every effort of gallantry on the part of our troops to resist them.

At this time two battalions of French infantry, which had on the first notice been sent by General Bosquet, joined our right, and very materially contributed to the successful resistance to the attack, cheering with our men, and charging the enemy down the hill with great loss.

About the same time a determined assault was made on our extreme left, and for a moment the enemy possessed themselves of four of our guns, three of which were retaken by the 88th, while the fourth was speedily recaptured by the 77th Regiment, under Lieutenant-Colonel Egerton.

In the opposite direction the Brigade of Guards, under His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, was engaged in a severe conflict.

The enemy, under the cover of thick brushwood, advanced in two heavy bodies, and assaulted with great determination a small redoubt which had been constructed for two guns, but was not armed. The combat was most arduous, and the Brigade, after displaying the utmost steadiness and gallantry was obliged to retire before very superior numbers, until supported by a wing of the 20th Regiment of the 4th Division, when they again advanced and retook the redoubt.

This ground was afterwards occupied in style by French troops, and the Guards reformed in rear of the right flank of the Division.

In the meanwhile, Lieutenant-General Honourable Sir George Cathcart, with companies of the 68th Regiment, considering he might make a strong impression by descending into the valley, and taking the enemy in flank, moved rapidly forward, but finding the heights above him in full occupation of the Russians, suddenly discovered that he was entangled with a superior force, and while attempting to withdraw his men, he received a mortal wound, shortly after which Brigadier-General Torrens, who was previously to which Brigadier-General Torrens leading the 68th, was likewise severely wounded.

Subsequently to this, the battle continued with unabated vigour and with no positive result, the enemy bringing upon our line not only the whole of all their field-batteries, but those in front of the works of the place, and the ship guns, till in the afternoon, when the symptoms of giving way became apparent; and shortly after, although the fire did not cease, the retreat became general. Heavy masses were observed retiring over the bridge of the Inkerman, and ascending the heights, abandoning on the field of battle more than six thousand dead and wounded, multitudes of the latter having already been carried off by the Russians. I never before witnessed such a spectacle as the field presented, but upon this I will not dwell.

Having submitted to your Grace this imperfect description of this most severe battle, I have two duties to discharge, the one most grateful, the last most painful to my feelings.

I have the greatest satisfaction in drawing your Grace's attention to the brilliant conduct of the Allied Troops. French and English victors.

each other in displaying their gallantry and manifesting their zealous devotion to duty, notwithstanding that they had to contend against an infinitely superior force, and were exposed for many hours to a most galling fire.

It should be borne in mind that they have daily for several weeks undergone the most constant labour, and that many of them passed the previous night in the trenches.

I will not attempt to enter into the detail of the movements of the French troops, lest I should not state them correctly, but I am proud of the opportunity of bearing testimony to their valour and energetic services, and of paying a tribute of admiration to the distinguished conduct of their immediate Commander General Bosquet, while it is in the highest degree pleasing to me to place upon record my deep sense of the valuable assistance I received from the Commander-in-Chief, General Canrobert, who was himself on the ground and in constant communication with me, and whose cordial co-operation on all occasions I cannot too highly extol.

Your Grace will recollect that he was wounded at the Alma. He was again wounded on the 5th, but I should hope that he will not long feel the effects of it.

I will in a subsequent despatch lay before your Grace the names of the officers whose services have been brought to my notice. I will not detain the mail for that purpose now, but I cannot delay to report the admirable behaviour of Lieutenant-General Sir George Brown, who was unfortunately shot through the arm, but is doing well; of Lieutenant-General His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, who particularly distinguished himself; and of Major-General Pennefather in command of the Second Division, which received the first attack, and gallantly maintained under the greatest difficulties throughout protracted conflict; of Major-General Ber who is severely wounded; Major-General rington, Brigadier-General Adams, and Brig General Torrens, who are severely wounded Brigadier-General Buller, who is also wounded but not so seriously.

I must likewise express my obligations to Lieutenant-General Sir Richard England for the excellent disposition he made of his division and the assistance he rendered to the left Light Division, where Brigadier-General Sir Campbell was judiciously placed, and effectively supported Major-General Codrington; and with great pleasure in stating that Brigadier-General Eyre was employed in the important duty of guarding the trenches from any assault from town.

Lieutenant-General Sir De Lacy Evans had been obliged by severe indisposition to board ship a few days previously, left his post soon as he received intelligence of the attack, was promptly at his post, and though he did not feel well enough to take the command of the division out of the hands of Major-General Pennycuik, he did not fail to give him his best advice and assistance.

It is deeply distressing to me to have to send to your Grace the list of the killed, wounded and missing on this memorable occasion. It is a heavy, and very many valuable officers and men have been lost to Her Majesty's service.

Among the killed your Grace will find the names of Lieutenant-General the Honourable G. Cathcart, Brigadier-General Strangways, and Brigadier-General Goldie.

Of the services of the first it is almost unsary to speak. They are known throughout the British empire, and have within a short space of time been brought conspicuously before the country by his achievements at the Cape of Good Hope, whence he had only just returned when he was ordered to this army.

By his death Her Majesty has been deprived of a most devoted servant, an officer of the highest merit, while I personally have to deplore the loss of an attached and faithful friend.

Brigadier-General Strangways was known to have distinguished himself in early life, and in mature age, throughout a long service, he maintained the same character.

The mode in which he had conducted the command of the Artillery, since it was placed in his hands by the departure through illness of Major-General Cator, is entitled to my entire approbation, and was equally agreeable to those who were confided to his care.

Brigadier-General Goldie was an officer of considerable promise, and gave great satisfaction to all under whom he has served.

It is difficult to arrive at any positive conclusion as to the actual numbers brought into the field by the enemy. The configuration of the ground did not admit of any great development of their force, the attack, consisting of a system of repeated assaults in heavy masses of columns; but judging from the numbers that were seen in the plains after they had withdrawn in retreat, I am led to suppose that they could not have been less than sixty thousand men. Their loss was excessive, and it is calculated that they left on the field near five thousand dead, and that their casualties amount in the whole, in killed, wounded, and prisoners, to not less than 15,000.

Your Grace will be surprised to learn that the number of British troops actually engaged little exceeded 8,000 men, whilst those of General Bosquet's division only amounted to 6,000, the remaining available French troops on the spot having been kept in reserve.

I ought to mention, that while the enemy were attacking our right, they assailed the left of our French trenches, and actually got into two of our batteries; but they were quickly driven out in the most gallant manner, with considerable loss, and hotly pursued to the very walls of Sebastopol.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,

&c. &c. &c.

TO THE

LONDON GAZETTE of DECEMBER 1, 1854.

*War-Department,
December 2, 1854, 1 p.m.*

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle has this day received a Despatch, of which the following is a copy, addressed to His Grace by Field-Marshal the Lord Raglan, G.C.B. :

No. 98.
MY LORD DUKE,

Before Sebastopol
November

When, on the 8th instant, I reported the gallant and successful repulse of the formidable attack made upon the position by our troops above the ruins of Inkermann, I stated that I would in a subsequent Despatch before your Grace, the names of the officers whose conduct upon the occasion had been brought to my notice. I now proceed to discharge my duty.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge reports most favourably of the exertions of the Honourable George Upton, of the Coldstream Guards, Lieutenant-Colonel Reynardson, Grenadier Guards, and Colonel Walker, Scots Fusilier Guards, as well as of Major Cunynghame, Assistant-Quarter-Master-General, and Lieutenant-Colonel Brownrigg, Adjutant-General; Captain the Honourable Fielding, Acting Deputy-Assistant-Quarter-Master-General, who was severely wounded; and Captain Butler, Deputy-Assistant-Adjutant-General, who was unfortunately killed; and here I pause to mention that he was the brother of Captain Butler, who so distinguished himself at Silistria, and fell just before the siege was raised.

The Duke of Cambridge likewise reports of Lieutenant-Colonel Dacres, of the Royal Artillery, who commanded the field batteries of the position, which were admirably served by Major Paynter and Woodhouse, Captain Hamley, Royal Artillery, acting as Staff Officer of the branch of the service; Captain Ellison, the Major to the Guards, and Major the Honourable James Macdonald (whose conduct particularly attracted my attention), and the other officers of his personal Staff.

His Royal Highness speaks also in the highest terms of the spirited exertions of Assistant-Surgeon Wilson, of the 7th Hussars, who at a critical moment rallied a few men, which enabled them to hold the ground till reinforced.

In the 2nd Division, which, as I have already informed your Grace, received the first attack, and was engaged throughout the day ; the Officers whose names I have to bring forward are very numerous.

Those who commanded the regiments of which it is composed were, without exception, either killed or wounded ; and, in many instances, those who succeeded were wounded. Major-General Pennefather commends them highly. Colonel Warren, of the 55th, in command of the 1st Brigade, and Lieutenant-Colonel Daubeney, 55th, who succeeded to it on the former being wounded, and was himself wounded afterwards ; Lieutenant-Colonel Mauleverer, 30th, and Major Patullo, of the same regiment, who took the command of the regiment when the Lieutenant-Colonel was wounded ; Major Champion, 95th Regiment, and Major Hume, of the same corps, who were both wounded, the latter having succeeded the former in the command, and being himself relieved by Captain Davis when he was obliged to leave the field.

Lieutenant-Colonel Carpenter, of the 41st, who was mortally wounded, and succeeded in the command by Major Eman ; Lieutenant-Colonel Haly, of the 47th, who was obliged, when wounded, to relinquish his command to Major Farren ; Major Dalton, of the 49th, who fell at the head of his corps, and was replaced by Major Grant ; Lieutenant-Colonel Fitzmayer, commanding the batteries of the 2nd Division, under the able direction of Captains Pennycuick and Turner ; Lieutenant-Colonel Wilbraham, and Lieutenant-General the Honourable Percy Herbert, the Assistant-Adjutant, and Assistant-Quartermaster-General, and Captain Thompson, 10th Hussars, and Captain Glazbrook, 49th Regiment, the Assistant-Adjutant, and Deputy-Assistant-Quartermaster-General of the Division; Colonel Thackwell and Armstrong, the Brigade-Major, Captain Harding, Aide-de-Camp, and the Officers attached to the Major-General's Staff, one of whom, Captain Allix, the First Aide-de-Camp of Lieutenant-General Sir David Evans, and a most promising officer, was unfortunately killed.

The 3rd Division was only partially engaged but having been actively employed in all the operations, Lieutenant-General Sir Richard D. K. Blackland avails himself of the opportunity to mention in terms of high approbation, the Staff Officers and the Officers in command of Regiments. He has drawn my attention to the services of Colonel Wood, Assistant-Adjutant-General, the Honourable Major Colborne, Assistant-Quartermaster-General, Captain Wortley, Deputy-Assistant-Quartermaster-General, and Colonel Bell, 1st Royal Regiment; Colonel Cobbe, of the 4th Regiment; Colonel the Honourable A. Spencer, 44th; Lieutenant-Colonel Lowth, of the 1st Lieutenant-Colonel Adams, of the 28th Lieutenant-Colonel Waddy, of the 50th Regiments; Major the Honourable A. Hope, 60th Regiment, Captain Daniell, of the 1st Brigade-Majors; and Captain Edward N. Scotts Fusilier Guards, his Aide-de-Camp.

The superior officers of the 4th Division, Lieutenant-General the Honourable Sir George D. Cart and Brigadier-General Goldie, having been killed, and the survivor, Brigadier-General T.

having been severely wounded, I take upon myself to recommend the surviving officers of the Staff, viz. : Colonel Wyndam, Assistant-Quartermaster-General, and Captain Hugh Smith, 3rd Foot, Deputy-Assistant-Quartermaster-General ; Major Maitland, Deputy-Assistant-Adjutant-General, who is wounded ; and Captain Street, 57th Regiment, and Lieutenant Torrens, 23rd Regiment, Brigade-Majors ; and I may here express my deep regret that Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Seymour, Scots Fusilier Guards, should have fallen. He had served on the Staff with the lamented Sir George Cathcart at the Cape, and had accompanied him to this country in the capacity of Assistant-Adjutant-General ; and he was remarkable for his intelligence, gallantry, and zeal.

I would likewise beg to solicit your Grace's attention to the services of Colonel Horn, who commanded the 20th, and came out of action the senior officer of the division ; Captain Inglis, commanding 57th, and Lieutenant-Colonel Smyth, commanding the 68th Regiment, who was severely wounded ; and Captain Dallas, commanding detachment of the 46th ; of Lieutenant-Colonel Ainslie of the 21st, who was wounded ; of Lieutenant-Colonel Swyny, who unfortunately fell at the head of the 63rd, and was succeeded in the command by Major the Honourable Robert Dalzell ; and Lieutenant-Colonel Horsford, of the Rifle Brigade ; of Lieutenant-Colonel D. Wood, the senior officer of the Artillery of the division ; and Major Townsend, of the Artillery, who was unfortunately killed. He was considered a most valuable officer, and was ably succeeded by Captain Hoste. Lieutenant-Colonel Powell would have commanded the 57th, but he was on duty in the trenches.

The officers of the Light Division, whose names have been brought to my notice, are Lieutenant-General Sir George Browne, who was obliged by a wound in his arm to retire from the field before the action terminated, and by General Codrington, who succeeded him in command, are Lieutenant-Colonel Yea, of the Royal Fusiliers; Major Sir Thomas Troubridge, of the same regiment, who was commanding a battery, and though desperately wounded, behaved with the utmost gallantry and command; Major Bunbury, of the 23rd, who replaced him in command; Brevet-Major Mundy, commanding the 33rd; Lieutenant-Colonel Shirley, of the 40th, who was employed in the trenches; Lieutenant-Colonel Jefferies, commanding the portion of the regiment which was in the field; Lieutenant-Colonel Egerton, commanding the 77th; Major Straton and Dixon, of the same regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel Unett, of the 19th, on duty in the trenches; Lieutenant-Colonel Lawrence, commanding the 1st Battalion Ebrington, of the Rifle Brigade; and Captain Hopkins, commanding a detachment of the 1st Battalion Marines, which had been brought up to support a wing of the Rifle Brigade that had been repulsed down to Balaklava, and fully maintained the reputation of that distinguished corps; Lieutenant-Colonel Lake, of the Royal Horse Artillery, and Captain Morris, commanding the 1st Battalion, attached to the division, Colonel Sullivan, Adjutant-General; Lieutenant-Colonel Bingham, Assistant-Quartermaster-General; Captain Bingham, Deputy Assistant-Quartermaster-General; Captain Macdonnell and the other officers of the Lieutenant-General's personal Staff; Lieutenant the Honourable H. Campbell, Aide-de-Camp to Major-General Codrington; and Brigadier-General Buller's Aide-de-Camp, Lieutenant Honourable H. Clifford, whose conduct is represented to have been peculiarly conspicuous; Captains Mackenzie and Glyn, the Brigade-Majors of the Division.

It is due to the principal Medical Officers of the several divisions, Doctors Alexander, Cruickshank, Forest, Linton, and Humfrey, to report that their able exertions have been strongly represented to me, and deserve to be most honourably mentioned, and the arrangements of the Inspector-General of Hospitals, Dr. Hall, for the care of the wounded, merit the expression of my entire approbation.

Lieutenant-Colonel Gambier, of the Royal Artillery, who had the command of the Artillery, in the trenches during the siege, a duty which he discharged to my perfect satisfaction, was I regret to say unfortunately wounded, when moving up with the two 18-pounders, which I had ordered to be brought to the right of the 2nd Division; and I have great pleasure in speaking in terms of high panegyric of Lieutenant-Colonel Dickson, who had charge of those guns, Captain d'Aguilar, and the officers and men who worked them; they performed under Lieutenant-Colonel Dickson's directions the most effective service, notwithstanding that they had a very heavy fire upon them, and that their loss in consequence was very severe, seventeen men having been either killed or wounded, and one officer wounded.

I derived, as upon every other occasion, the most able and effective assistance from the Adjutant and Quartermaster-General, Brigadier-General Estcourt, and Brigadier-General Airey, and their Assistants, Major the Honourable W. Pakenham, and Lieutenant-Colonel the Honourable A. Gordon, and the officers of their departments; and

The one, Captain Maude, of the Royal Artillery, who has since been badly wounded, distinguished himself at the battle of the Alma; the other, Captain W. J. Campbell, became the Senior Officer of the Regiment, when Lieutenant-Colonel Ches-kill, and, though severely wounded, could be persuaded to quit the field.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

Submarine Electric Telegraph in the Sound.

Notice is hereby given, that a Submarine Telegraphic Cable has been laid down from Vedbek, on the coast of Slesland, to the vicinity of Hillesborg, a manor $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles to the north of Landsrona, on the coast of Skaane, in the following marks, viz. :

At Vedbek two beacons, bearing W. $\frac{1}{2}$ S., and E. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. (by compass) when in one, gives the direction of the cable from this place to the southward of the Island of Hveen ; and

At Hillesborg, two similar beacons, bearing E. by N. $\frac{1}{4}$ N., and W. by S. $\frac{1}{4}$ S., when in one, shews the direction of the said cable from south of Hveen to the coast of Skaane.

Between Vedbek and Hveen the line of the cable has moreover been marked by several small floating beacons, with a flag on a pole, while a larger floating beacon at the south end of Hveen indicates the place where the direction of the cable is bent.

Mariners are requested not anchor with those marks or bearings on, lest by so doing they damage the electric cable, or lose their own anchors, and to follow the directions given by pilots or other appointed functionaries on this account.

FROM THE
LONDON GAZETTE EXTRAORDINARY
of DECEMBER 11, 1854.

War Department, 10 a.m., December 11, 1854.

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle has this day received Despatches and Enclosures, of which the following are copies, addressed to his Grace by Field-Marshal the Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

No. 110. Before Sebastopol,
 MY LORD DUKE, November 23, 1854.

The Russian advanced posts in front of our left attack having taken up a position which incommoded our troops in the trenches, and occasioned not a few casualties, and at the same time took in reverse the French troops working in their lines, a representation of which was made to me both by our own officers and by General Canrobert, a detachment of the 1st Battalion Rifle Brigade, under Lieutenant Tryon, was directed on the night of the 20th to dislodge the enemy; and this service was performed most gallantly and effectively, but at some loss both in killed and wounded, and at the cost of the life of Lieutenant Tryon, who rendered himself conspicuous on the occasion, was considered a most promising officer, and held in the highest estimation by all.

The Russians attempted several times to re-establish themselves on the ground before daylight on the 21st, but they were instantly repulsed by Lieutenant Bouchier, the senior surviving officer of the party, and it now remains in our possession.

Brigadier-General Sir John Campbell speaks highly of the conduct of the detachment, and of Lieutenant Bouchier and Lieutenant Cuninghame, and he laments the death of Lieutenant Tryon, who so ably led them in the first instance.

This little exploit was so highly prized by General Canrobert that he instantly published an "Ordre Général," announcing it to the French Army, and combining, with a just tribute to the gallantry of the troops, the expression of his deep sympathy in the regret felt for the loss of a young officer of so much distinction.

Nothing else has occurred since I had last the honour to address your Grace.

The weather is again very bad, and steady rain is constantly falling.

I inclose the nominal list of killed and wounded at the battle of the Inkerman, and a return of the casualties that have occurred in the trenches to the 20th instant.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,

No. 112.

Near Sebastopol,

MY LORD DUKE,

November 28, 1854.

In the despatch which I addressed to your Grace on the 23rd instant, I reported the gallant conduct of a detachment of the 1st battalion Rifle Brigade, and its occupation of an advanced position which it continued to retain, notwithstanding the repeated efforts of the enemy to re-establish themselves upon it.

On the night of the 22nd and on the following morning, shortly before daylight, the Russians renewed their endeavours to get possession of the ground they had been driven from, but they were repulsed on each occasion in the most spirited manner, in the first instance by a detachment of the 4th Foot, under Lieutenant Patrick Robertson, and a working party belonging to the 57th Regiment, in the last instance by the detachment of the 4th Foot alone.

Brigadier-General Eyre speaks in the highest terms of the conduct of these troops, and particularly that of Lieutenant Robertson, whose former distinguished service at the Cape, coupled with that he displayed in the present affair, fully entitle him to be considered an officer of much promise.

There has been no movement of importance on the part of the enemy. The weather has been very bad, and the camp and the country are in consequence of the rain in a most unsatisfactory state.

The men are, however, endeavouring, and with some success, to shelter themselves with the stones that are found in the vicinity of the encampment, and every effort is making to provide them with the materials for hutting themselves, but the condition of the roads render this a matter of extreme difficulty.

It is gratifying to me to be able to assure you, that, notwithstanding their privations, their exposure to the weather, and the constant labour required of them, they exhibit the same cheerfulness, the same ardour in the discharge of their duty as they have manifested throughout the extensive operations in which they have been engaged.

I inclose the return of casualties up to the 26th instant inclusive.

The defences of the Inkerman position, notwithstanding the frequent interruptions from the weather are making considerable progress.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,

The following Despatch has been received at the Admiralty from Vice-Admiral Dundas, Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's Ships and Vessels in the Mediterranean and Black Seas :—

No. 615.

*Britannia, off the Katscha,
November 22, 1854.*

SIR,

I beg you will lay before the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty a copy of a letter I have received from Captain the Hon. S. T. Carnegie, of the Tribune, detailing the proceedings of that ship, the Highflyer, and the Lynx, during their late cruize.

The attack on, and destruction of, the enemy's force and battery appear to have been planned and executed with skill and judgment. The uncertain and heavy weather prevented further operations on the coast; indeed it was with great difficulty that Captain Carnegie got the people off after destroying the tower and battery, although perfectly smooth sea when they landed.

I have, &c.,

*Her Majesty's ship Tribune,
SIR, Straits of Kertch, November 17, 1854.*

I have the honour to acquaint you, that on the forenoon of Sunday the 12th instant, whilst standing in for the coast of Circassia, about 10 miles to the N.W. of the Fort of Anapa, guns were observed to be fired from a large Martello Tower, situated at a spot which commands the coast road from Anapa to Kertch, and which is marked on the charts by the word "Dahemetie." Her Majesty's ship Tribune, Highflyer, and Lynx, stood in as far the depth of water would allow them; anchored at a distance of 900 yards from the beach, and opened a fire upon the place, which in a short time compelled the garrison to leave it.

Some of the seamen and marines were immediately landed, and completed the destruction of the place by fire.

The tower, with two guns, ammunition, &c., was blown up under the direction of Captain Moore, of Her Majesty's ship Highflyer, and I regret to add that in the performance of this service, that officer was slightly, and Lieutenant M. E. Smithett, of Her Majesty's ship Tribune, severely wounded by the explosion.

The landing was effected without trouble, but the surf rose with such rapidity afterwards that it was with difficulty our boats were enabled to rejoin their ships.

The officers who landed behaved with skill and ability: and I wish to bring under your notice the exertions of Captain Moore, Lieutenant Luce, commanding the Lynx, Lieutenant M. E. Smithett, of Her Majesty's ship under my command, and Lieutenant Armytage, of the Highflyer, whose conduct in getting the boats over the surf was most conspicuous.

I have, &c.,

(Signed)

S. T. CARNEGIE,

Captain.

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE of DECEMBER 12, 1854.

At the Court at Buckingham-Palace, the 11th day of December, 1854.

PRESENT,

The QUEEN's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

WHEREAS by the Act of the seventeenth and eighteenth Victoria, cap. seventy-eight, entitled "The Admiralty Court Act, 1854," it is amongst other things enacted, that Her Majesty may by Her Order in Council from time to time vary, alter, or abolish, all or any of the Fees payable in relation to proceedings in the High Court of Admiralty of England, and may substitute one or more Fee or Fees in lieu thereof, and may direct that all or any of such Fees shall, from a day to be named in such Order, and thenceforth, be collected by means of stamps, to be provided and used in manner thereafter mentioned.

And whereas it hath been represented unto Her Majesty by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, that they have received from the Right Honourable Stephen Lushington, the Judge of the High Court of Admiralty of England, a recommendation to the effect that it would be desirable to simplify the Tables of Fees now payable in the said Court, and to provide for the collection thereof by means of stamps in the manner hereinafter mentioned; and the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury have approved of such recommendation.

Now, therefore, Her Majesty is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, that from and after the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, and until Her Majesty shall be pleased otherwise to direct, the Fees in the annexed schedule, marked from No. 1 to No. 73, inclusive, shall be substituted in lieu of the Fees now payable to the Judge, Registrar, Merchants, and Marshal of the High Court of Admiralty of England, and which, under the provisions of the Act of the third and fourth Victoria, cap. sixty-six, are now carried to the Fee Fund of the said Court.

And Her Majesty is further pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, that all the said Fees, numbered from No. 1 to No. 73, inclusive, shall, from the day aforesaid, be collected by means of stamps, whether adhesive or affixed, and under such regulations as the Judge of the said Court shall direct.

And Her Majesty is also further pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the Fees in the annexed schedule, marked from No. 74 to No. 76, inclusive, shall, from the said first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, be payable to the Seal Keeper of the said Court, in lieu of the Fees now payable to him in respect of that office.

And Her Majesty is also pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that in lieu of the Fees now payable to the Cryer of the said Court, there shall, from the day aforesaid, be payable to him a uniform fee of five shillings on every interlocutory decree, sentence, or motion in Court, to be paid by the party in whose favour such decree or sentence has been given, or by whom such motion has been made.

Whereof the Judge, Registrar, and other officers of the said Court, the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, and all others whom it may concern, are to take notice, and to govern themselves accordingly.

Wm. L. Bathurst.

FROM THE

LONDON GAZETTE of DECEMBER 15, 1854.

Buckingham-Palace, December 12, 1854.

THIS day Her Majesty, accompanied by His Royal Highness Prince Albert, proceeded in state from Buckingham-Palace to the House of Peers, where she arrived soon after two o'clock; and was received, on alighting from her state coach, by the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Privy Seal, the Lord Great Chamberlain, and the Treasurer of the Household, Garter King of Arms, and the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, and proceeded to the State Robing-room in the customary manner.

Her Majesty was there robed, and the procession moved into the House in the usual order;—the sword of state was borne by the Earl of Aberdeen, K.T., the cap of maintenance by the Marquess of Winchester, and the crown by the Marquess of Lansdowne, K.G.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I have called you together at this unusual period of the year, in order that by your assistance I may take such measures as will enable me to prosecute the great war in which we are engaged with the utmost vigour and effect.

This assistance I know will be readily given; for I cannot doubt that you share my conviction of the necessity of sparing no effort to augment my forces now engaged in the Crimea. The exertions they have made, and the victories they have obtained, are not exceeded in the brightest pages of our history, and have filled me with admiration and gratitude.

The hearty and efficient co-operation of the brave troops of my ally the Emperor of the French, and the glory acquired in common, cannot fail to cement still more closely the union which happily subsists between the two nations.

It is with satisfaction I inform you, that, together with the Emperor of the French, I have concluded a treaty of alliance with the Emperor of Austria, from which I anticipate important advantages to the common cause.

I have also concluded a treaty with the United States of America, by which subjects of long and difficult discussion have been equitably settled.

These treaties will be laid before you.

Although the prosecution of the war will naturally engage your chief attention, I trust that other matters of great interest and importance to the general welfare will not be neglected.

I rejoice to observe that the general prosperity of my subjects remains uninterrupted.

The state of the revenue affords me entire satisfaction ; and I trust that by your wisdom and prudence you will continue to promote the progress of agriculture, commerce, and manufactures.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

In the estimates which will be presented to you I trust you will find that ample provision has been made for the exigencies of the public service.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I rely with confidence on your patriotism and public spirit. I feel assured that in the momentous contest in which we are engaged you will exhibit to the world the example of a united people. Thus shall we obtain the respect of other nations, and may trust that, by the blessing of God, we shall bring the war to a successful termination.

TREASURY WARRANT.

Whereas by an Act, passed in the fourth year of the reign of Her present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the regulation of the duties of postage," power is given to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, from time to time, by Warrant under their hands, to alter and fix any of the rates of British or inland postage payable by law on the transmission by the post of foreign or colonial letters, and to subject the same to rates of postage according to the weight thereof.

And whereas further powers are given to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury by an Act, passed in the eleventh year of the reign of Her present Majesty, intituled "An Act for giving further facilities for the transmission of letters by post, and for the regulating the duties of postage thereon, and for other purposes relating to the post-office."

And whereas, in consequence of an additional treaty lately entered into between Her Majesty and the Emperor of the French, it is expedient to alter the rates of postage on the letters hereinafter mentioned ; Now we, the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, in exercise of the powers vested in us in and by the said before-mentioned Acts, or either of them, and of all other powers enabling us in this behalf, do, by this Warrant (under the hands of two of us the said Commissioners, by the authority of the Statute in that case made and provided), order and direct that, on every letter not exceeding one quarter of an ounce in weight, posted in the United Kingdom, addressed to France or Algeria, or posted in France or Algeria, addressed to the United Kingdom and transmitted by the post direct, between any place in the United Kingdom and any place in France or Algeria, there shall be charged, taken, and paid, in lieu of any rates of postage now payable by law on such respective letters an uniform total rate of postage of four pence.

And that on every letter not exceeding one quarter of an ounce in weight, posted in the United Kingdom, addressed to any foreign country on the continent of Europe (Spain, Portugal, and France excepted), or to any of the islands in the Grecian Archipelago, or to Alexandria, Beyrout, Smyrna, or the Dardanelles, or posted in any such foreign countries (except as aforesaid), islands, ports, or places addressed to the United Kingdom, and transmitted by the post between any place in the United Kingdom and any such foreign countries (except as aforesaid), islands, ports, or places, viâ France, otherwise than in closed mails (the sea conveyance in the Mediterranean being by French packet boats), there shall be charged, taken, and paid in lieu of any rates of postage now payable by law on such respective letters, an uniform British rate of postage of two pence.

And that on every letter not exceeding one quarter of an ounce in weight, posted in or addressed to Algeria, France, or any other foreign countries on the continent of Europe (Spain and Portugal included), or to any of the islands in the Grecian Archipelago, or to Alexandria, Beyrout, Smyrna, or the Dardanelles, and transmitted by the post between Algeria, France, or any such other foreign countries, islands, ports, or places, and Her Majesty's colonies of Jamaica, Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland, viâ France and the United Kingdom (the sea conveyance in the Mediterranean being by French packet boats), there shall be charged, taken, and paid in lieu of any rates of postage now payable by law on such respective letters, an uniform British rate of one shilling.

And that on every letter not exceeding one quarter of an ounce in weight, posted in or addressed to Algeria, France, or any other foreign countries on the continent of Europe (Spain and Portugal included), or to any of the islands in the

Grecian Archipelago, or to Alexandria, Beyrou, Smyrna, or the Dardanelles, and transmitted by the post between France, or any such other foreign countries, islands, ports or places, and any port in Her Majesty's colonies (Jamaica, Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland excepted), viâ France and the United Kingdom (the sea conveyance in the Mediterranean being by French packet boats), there shall be charged, taken, and paid in lieu of any rates of postage now payable by law on such respective letters, an uniform British rate of ten pence.

And we direct that on every letter transmitted as is mentioned in this Warrant, exceeding a quarter of an ounce in weight, there shall be charged, taken, and paid in lieu of any rates of postage now payable by law on such respective letters, progressive and additional rates of postage as follows (that is to say) :

On every letter exceeding a quarter of an ounce in weight, and not exceeding half an ounce in weight, two rates of postage.

On every letter exceeding half an ounce in weight, and not exceeding three quarters of an ounce in weight, three rates of postage.

On every letter exceeding three quarters of an ounce in weight, and not exceeding one ounce in weight, four rates of postage.

And for every quarter of an ounce in weight, above the weight of one ounce, there shall be charged and taken one additional rate of postage, and every fraction of a quarter of an ounce shall be charged as an additional quarter of an ounce, and each progressive and additional rate chargeable under this clause shall be estimated and charged at the sum which any such letter would be charged with under this Warrant if not exceeding one quarter of an ounce in weight.

And we do further order and direct, that as to any letter hereinbefore authorised to be sent by the post under the provisions aforesaid, which shall be posted in the United Kingdom, addressed to France or Algeria, the postage thereof shall in every case be paid either in money or by being duly stamped with the proper British postage stamp or stamps affixed thereto, which stamp or stamps shall in every case be affixed or appear on the outside of every such letter near the address, and shall be of the value or amount of the postage duty payable thereupon under or by virtue of this Warrant ; and as to every such letter posted in France or Algeria, addressed to the United Kingdom, it is the intention that the postage thereof shall in every case be paid at the time of the same being posted.

And we do further order and direct, that if the postage of any such letter posted in the United Kingdom, addressed to France or Algeria, shall not be duly and properly paid, either in money or by British stamps, when posted ; or, if the postage of any such letter posted in France or Algeria, addressed to the United Kingdom, shall not be duly and properly paid when posted, every such letter shall be charged with a postage of double the amount of postage to which it would have been liable under the provisions aforesaid, if the postage thereof had been paid in money or stamps when posted.

And we do further order and direct that nothing herein contained shall be construed in anywise to annul, prejudice, or affect any of the exemptions and privileges granted by the said recited Act, passed in the fourth year of the reign of Her present Majesty, nor to annul, prejudice, or affect any of the privileges which seamen and soldiers employed in Her Majesty's service, and seamen and soldiers employed in the service of the East India Company, now by law enjoy of sending and receiving by the post letters not exceeding half an ounce in weight, subject to the regulations and restrictions in respect of the same, nor to annul, prejudice, or affect the privileges under which printed newspapers, printed prices current, printed commercial lists, printed courses of exchange, periodical publications, and parliamentary proceedings, may now be forwarded by the post between the United Kingdom or Her Majesty's colonies and France or Algeria, or between the United Kingdom and Her Majesty's colonies or foreign countries through France, subject to the regulations and restrictions in respect of the same, nor to repeal, alter, or affect the provisions of a certain Warrant under the hands of two of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, bearing date the 17th day of May, 1854, as to certain letters transmitted by the post between the United Kingdom and any port or place in Turkey or the Black Sea.

And we do further order and direct that the term "by the post" whenever used in this Warrant, shall, as to the sea conveyance, include the conveyance by packet-boat, British or French, or by private ship, unless it be inconsistent with the context of the clause or provision in which such term shall be found; and that the several other terms and expressions used in this Warrant shall be construed to have the like meaning in all respects as they would have had if inserted in the said Act passed in the fourth year of the reign of Her present Majesty.

And we do further order and direct that this Warrant shall come into operation on the first day of January next.

Provided lastly, and we hereby declare and direct, that it shall be lawful for the Commissioners for the time being of Her Majesty's Treasury, or any two of them, by Warrant, under their hands at any time hereafter to alter any of the regulations hereby made and to make and establish any new or other regulations in lieu thereof.

Whitehall, Treasury Chambers, the twenty-seventh day of December, 1854.

FROM THE SUPPLEMENT
LONDON GAZETTE of DECEMBER 29, 1854.

War-Department,
December 30, 1854, 10½ o'clock, a.m.

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle has this day received a Despatch, of which the following is a copy, addressed to his Grace by Field-Marshal the Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

Before Sevastopol,
MY LORD DUKE, December 13, 1854.

Your Grace will be happy to hear that the weather has continued fine, since I had the honour to address your Grace on the 8th instant.

The enemy has made no movement of importance, and nothing of any material consequence has taken place before Sevastopol.

The Russians moved upon our advanced pickets, in front of our left attack, the night before last, in some force; but they were instantly driven back by a detachment of the 1st Battalion Rifle Brigade, on the right, and by one of the 45th on the left. The firing, however, was kept up for some time, and the 3rd and 4th Divisions were held in readiness to support, in case their assistance should have been required.

I enclose the return of casualties to the 10th instant.

I have, &c.,
RAGLAN.

His Grace the Duke of Newcastle.
